

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 0.3 per cent in July as inflation continued its summer pattern of moderate expansion, the government said today.

The small July advance in the Wholesale Price Index, which translates into an annual inflation rate of 3.6 per cent, followed similar WPI increases of 0.3 per cent in May and 0.4 per cent in June.

The Labor Department said the index—considered by many economists to be the government's most effective tool for gauging inflation—now stands at 184.3 on its 1967 base of 100.

Food prices fell 1 per cent in July, the first such decline in four months. But prices on industrial commodities such as petroleum, lumber and metal products rose 0.7 per cent in July, their largest upswing since last a similar jump last January.

Israeli Plane Is Target of Guerrillas

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Pro-Palestinian gunmen hurled a bomb at passengers about to board an Israeli plane at Istanbul airport Wednesday night, then sprayed bullets on the victims. They killed three persons — two Israelis and a Japanese — and wounded more than a dozen others.

Police shot and killed one of the guerrillas and captured the others. The terrorists were said to be members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine. (More on Page 17)

Common Cause Gives the $Figures

WASHINGTON — Special interest groups and the rich gave three times more money to members of Congress running for re-election in 1974 than to their challengers, according to a new study.

The report by the political reform lobby group Common Cause also said labor groups donated by far the largest amount, totaling $6.3 million, while business, professional and dairy groups came in second with $4.8 million.

County Fair Is Open Today

By CARL GRAHAM
Freeman staff

NEW PALTZ — An air of optimism swept across the Ulster County Fairgrounds today as early morning sunlight burned away a layer of haze and brought a promise of good weather and good crowds.

John Molloy, manager of the Ulster County fair, echoed the feelings of exhibitors, officials and showmen.

"I think we'll break all attendance records," he predicted. Last year's attendance was an estimated 12,000.

Long before the gates opened to the public at 10 a.m. the fairgrounds were a beehive of activity. Early risers among the exhibitors who stayed overnight had a chance to fortify themselves for a busy day at the restaurant operated by the New Paltz United Methodist Church, a fair standby for years. Charley Carson manned the griddle, expertly flipping flapjacks the size of discs.

The restaurant opens at 6:30 a.m. and serves breakfast until 10, when it changes to hamburgers and hot dogs for the visitors.

"These people work hard, they have exhibits and animals to take care of," Carson said. The menu is geared to heavy work, and the church serves a breakfast that would send a lumberjack into the woods comfortably. Orange juice, a double order of pancakes, two eggs, bacon, toast and two cups of coffee are available for even the heartiest of appetites. About 150 church members volunteered.

Esopus Crowd Debates Youth Crime Problems

ESOPUS — In the wake of the burning of the United Methodist Church in Port Ewen this week about 300 Esopus citizens showed up at the monthly meeting of the Town Board last night to discuss ways to combat youth crime.

A full-time police department, new federally-funded youth programs, tougher curfew enforcement, and increased protection by the county sheriff and the state police were all debated as methods to guard against a repeat of Monday's events.

A three-man full time department would cost Esopus taxpayers over $100,000 next year and more in succeeding years, Town Supervisor Joseph Sills estimated. This would add at least $1.50 to the tax rate, he said.

"It's good time for people to discuss whether they want a full-time police department, because we're in the planning stages now for the new town budget. The taxpayers have to decide where they want the major portion of their taxes spent, and they must assume the responsibility for paying what they want," Sills commented.

"Everyone would like to see a full-time department," he added, "but even with a full-time department you aren't going to eliminate all these problems.

"Perhaps we ought to improve our present part-time force a little at a time — there are other things that have to be done, including a new highway garage," he said.

Esopus spends about $20,000 for its present part-time police force.

Another option discussed was the creation of new youth programs in the town. Supervisor Sills is now reviewing federal programs that might provide funding for the town, and the possibility of establishing a county youth office in Port Ewen.

"We want to find out from our younger society what they would like the community to do for them," he said. "It behooves us to provide them with what they want and to work with them to help them become good citizens.

"Only a few kids are causing the problem, and some of the people involved may be over 18," he added.

At the meeting, Michael Kavanagh, first assistant district attorney for Ulster County, assured the citizens that anyone arrested in the arson case would be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The DA's office never offers to reduce a charge in exchange for a plea of guilty, he added.

"Burn down the church, which meant so much to the community, the community is going to demand that your punishment fit the crime," Sills said.

More police protection for the town was promised by County Sheriff Thomas Mayone, who appeared at the meeting, and by state police Sgt. James Brennan.

Other business conducted during the three-hour meeting included:

• The presentation of a 100-signature petition urging the board to ask the state Department of Transportation to investigate lowering speed limits in the town.

• The announcement of an expanded bicycle safety program conducted by the town police.

• The board's reluctant acceptance of the resignation of Raymond Burr, a 35-year veteran of the Esopus police.

Lost Wallet Brings Hardship

KINGSTON — Raymond VanNostrand understands that every penny counts these days. He understands it very well now that he's lost his wallet and all his food money for the next six days.

VanNostrand, 33, an unemployed security guard, thinks he lost the wallet and the $32 in it a few days ago while sitting in the Jack-in-the-Box Restaurant on Broadway. His back pocket doesn't have a button.

VanNostrand won't starve. He lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth VanNostrand of 140 Smith Ave. But money is tight for them, too, and Raymond has been pitching in from his welfare checks while he waits to hear about working again for Interstate Security Service in Poughkeepsie.

"Things are slow at the knitting mill where his father works. His mother, who can no longer work as a nurse because of heart and lung trouble, finds that "making the rent is awful hard."

"If I found your wallet, I would return it," VanNostrand wrote the Freeman editor, "because I know how it feels when you lost your last dollar. . . . I got six more days before I'll have any money to eat with."

His wallet can be returned to Box 82, Cornell Street Post Office.

Dog Crackdown Is Demanded

KINGSTON — Members of the Kingston Common Council will soon tackle the politically unpopular task of toughening enforcement procedures and penalties against delinquency in the city's dog population.

Alderman Donald E. Quick, D-Sixth Ward, chairman of the council's laws and rules subcommittee, said there are currently proposals to stiffen the stray dog penalties and to include noisy dogs in the ordinance that covers strays.

"Come September and time for school, you're going to see the dogs run crazy," said Quick, who recalled massive dog fights outside schools where faithful canines had followed their masters and mistresses.

The subcommittee is pondering whether to increase the fine for strays to $10 for a first offense, perhaps up to $25 and $50 for subsequent offenses.

Owners of strays now are fined only $2 to $5 any time their dogs are picked up, and that "hardly covers the city's cost of keeping the dog in the pound," Quick said.

As for the noise problem, Quick said some council members would like to see Dog Warden Michael L. Cooper empowered to pick up chronic howlers and barkers as he would strays.

Dog behavior is currently governed by two municipal ordinances. The so-called dog ordinance requires that dogs be licensed and kept under control, either by a leash, other physical restraint or the owner's command. Another ordinance makes any undue noise a nuisance subject to prosecution.

The problem with curbing a noisy dog is that it requires court action. A resident must sign a complaint, often against his neighbor, and cases must be scheduled, witnesses called, and continuances issued long after Fido has barked.

Also, some aldermen claim the municipal court is "a little soft" on owners of offensive dogs.

However, empowering the dog warden to pick up noisy dogs itself may involve complex legal problems, especially where entry on private property is concerned, Quick said.

"We may end up in court, but I'm willing to take the gamble," Quick said. "Have you ever stood outside a house at 2 a.m. when the owners are gone and the dog is inside, barking his head off?"

Unwillingness of private citizens to sign complaints is often a hardship on young children who are afraid of dogs. Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, has two constituents whose children were bitten by the same dog, and the animal is believed still on the loose.

"One of my daughter's great joys was riding her bicycle from the house to the ballpark. Now, every time she goes out, her heart is in her throat," said one of the constituents, a woman who asked not to be identified because she "didn't want to make enemies."

Kingston has some 2,500 licensed dogs, perhaps 4,000 in all if the illegal dogs are counted. The city also has about 100 miles of streets, any one of which has a stray or barking dog at any given hour.

"It's not Mike's fault," Quick said in defense of the dog warden. "He's doing a good job. But he's alone, and he doesn't have the proper tools."

Buckley Jumps into Presidential Ring

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The shadow of a spoiler lay across the already murky Republican presidential nomination picture today.

New York Sen. James Buckley said Wednesday he will get into the struggle between President Ford and Ronald Reagan if it will "free up" next week's GOP National Convention.

Buckley, a Conservative Republican, said Wednesday in New York his intention would be to block a first-ballot nomination of either major contender and give delegates now bound to one or the other of them a chance to vote their convictions.

On the hard-fought preliminary drafts of the party's policy platform, both Ford and Reagan forces could claim some wins and acknowledge some losses.

Ford's most significant victory came Wednesday night when conservatives failed to muster enough subcommittee votes to repudiate Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's African policy. Their move failed on a tie vote of 8 to 8.

Compromise language on the Panama Canal and on supporting Taiwan was drafted, and the subcommittee version to be thrashed out in the full platform committee beginning today contained strong stands against busing, abortion, gun control and — a blow to Ford — the Equal Rights Amendment.

Other Story Page 5

There were some small shifts in the delegate counts this week, but Ford still led Reagan 1,122 to 1,035 with 102 uncommitted in the UPI tabulation. It takes 1,130 to win the nomination.

The Ford side was handsdown winner on rules issues, easily getting Republican National Committee approval of its proposal to enforce state laws that bind convention delegates to a particular candidate.

However, the rules still must be fought out in convention committees that figure to be less favorable than the national committee to the President's cause.

The view that a Buckley candidacy would hurt Reagan, not Ford, was taken by White House press secretary Ron Nessen. He said a Buckley candidacy "locks it up for the President. . . . Buckley will take votes away from Ron Reagan."

That was not the way Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., saw it. Helms, one of those who first approached Buckley, said the New Yorker's move might deny Ford a first-ballot victory.

Helms, a Reagan supporter, said Buckley's action was not part of the former California governor's strategy. Reagan's campaign manager, John Sears, said the same, but added that "some people think Buckley will attract some delegates that are for President Ford."

Local Skeptics Still Probing Kennedy Assassination

By STEVEN ASHER
Freeman staff

Who killed John Fitzgerald Kennedy?

The question reverberates like a rifle shot through the years.

The Warren Commission said that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, killed John F. Kennedy with a bullet fired from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository.

In the twelve years since the Warren Report, an informal nationwide network of skeptics, critics, and researchers has doggedly pursued thousands of leads in an effort to undercut the Warren Report and discover who killed Kennedy and who covered up what they claim is the truth.

They have claimed, in scores of books, pamphlets, magazine articles, and speeches that the commission's findings were false.

Two of the critics, Woodstock's Rush Harp and David Wemple of Hurley, have been working for years to ascertain what happened in Dallas on November 22, 1963 and across the country before and after.

David Wemple asks the following questions, echoing the cries of scores of other critics:

—If all the shots came from the school book warehouse, why did dozens of witnesses that day hear shots coming from the grassy knoll, across Elm Street from the building?

—If Kennedy was hit from the rear, why do most people, including several Freeman staffers, who view the grisly home movie of Abraham Zapruder, see something different?

They see in stop-action and slow motion John Kennedy thrown back against the seat of his limousine as his skull explodes under the impact of the fatal bullet. Newton's laws of physics support the contention that to produce such a reaction, the shell must have been fired from in front of the President.

They see, within a second, Jacqueline Kennedy crawling onto the trunk of the limousine to pick up a piece of Kennedy's skull that was blown backwards under the impact of the bullet.

If Kennedy was hit from the front, then the Warren Commission's theory is disproved.

—If the case against Oswald was so strong and there was no conspiracy, why were witnesses offering contradictory testimony ignored, cut off, or derided by the commission — and threatened and shot by persons unknown?

untee each year to man the booth, which also features more conventional breakfast fare.

Nearby, young boys and girls in jeans and T-shirts washed down cows and calves with hoses. Others carried buckets of water to the sheep and wool barn across the road and to the cattle pens under canvas.

Almost forgotten is the heavy wind and rain that earlier this week blew down four exhibition tents and threatened the fair with disaster. Crews worked around the clock Tuesday to replace the tents and there is little sign of any trouble visible today.

The animals added to the general atmosphere of busy expectancy with a chorus of clucks, moos, baas, neighs, lows and whinnies as nervous 4-H youngsters readied their charges for the judging, which began this morning even before the public was admitted. Vegetable judging was held outdoors beside the 4-H building and flower judging and Grange Booth judging were both on the agenda. The 4-H dog obedience show under canvas drew a large entry and an unthinking person who wandered by with an unleashed dog drew nervous glares from competitors and judges alike.

Today's opening touched off four days of activity that promises to be the biggest and best ever. 4-H officials said that entries in all categories were larger than ever. Judging was to proceed throughout the day in small animal, poultry, arts and crafts, and other classes and the day will end with the Miss Ulster Teenager Contest, with the winner going on to represent the county in the statewide contest in Norwich. Other events on tap for visitors included three appearances by The Legends, a rock group; Dr. Edison's Medicine Show; archery demonstrations; an automotive driving skill contest in the horse ring, a 4-H sheep blocking and trimming contest; and the usual assortment of rides, games and midway attractions.

Friday's program promises more of the same, plus the appearance of the Osborne Brothers, a big-time country and western act from the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville. The singing and playing brothers will appear at 6 and 8 p.m. on the big stage, supplemented by Saugerties' own New Country Cousins and Jim Collier and his bluegrass group from Catskill.

The big-name program represents a departure from past fairs for the sponsoring Ulster County Agricultural Society. Another big night of country-western fare is on tap Saturday, when singer Hank Snow appears at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m., again augmented by the New Country Cousins and Jim Collier.

The fair closes at 6 p.m. Sunday. The fairgrounds is located on Libertyville Road west of New Paltz off Route 299, where a large sign has been erected giving directions. Parking is free this year, but there is an admission fee to the grounds.

Burt Was Quick With His 99th Baby

KERHONKSON—Burt Quick of Fatum's Ambulance delivered his 99th baby in an ambulance en route to Benedictine Hospital from Ellenville early this morning.

Bob Barringer of Fatum's says Quick was called to Ellenville to take an expectant mother to Benedictine.

Somewhere along Route 209 in Kerhonkson she gave birth to a healthy baby girl.

The ambulance was out of range of Fatum's radio, but Ulster County REACT and the sheriff's department relayed the message to Fatum's dispatcher and to Benedictine that the delivery was taking place in the ambulance.

Dispatcher Barringer took another Fatum's ambulance to Benedictine Hospital, and a nurse there instructed Quick over the radio as to how to care for the baby which was reportedly having trouble breathing.

At the intersection of Routes 209 and 28 the ambulance received an escort from the Town of Ulster Police.

Mother and daughter are both doing well at Benedictine.

Attica Inmate Cut Held Impossible

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Overcrowding throughout the state's prison system makes it "practically impossible" to implement a proposal to cut the Attica population by 750, according to a spokesman for the Department of Corrections.

That recommendation was forwarded to Gov. Hugh Carey nearly a month ago by the State Commission of Correction, which oversees the state's penal system.

After the proposal was disclosed Wednesday by an Albany newspaper, Carey's office acknowledged receipt of the report. But, the Department of Corrections said none of the 12 recommendations had been forwarded for implementation.

Cutting the Attica population "is an excellent recommendation," a spokesman for Commissioner Benjamin Ward said. "But, we have to find some place to move these inmates. The entire system is jammed right now."

The state's lockups currently house 17,908 inmates, leaving fewer than 500 cells empty at a time when the inmate population has been growing by nearly 200 a month.

Attica currently houses 1,925 men, nearly the same level as in 1971 when a prisoner rebellion resulted in the death of 43 persons.

"To make room for 750 people, we'd have to find 750 beds somewhere," the spokesman said. "That's a facility the size of Cocksackie."

Most state facilities are at or near bed capacity and the acquisition of several drug treatment facilities within the last few months "has only helped take the load off the system" at a time when the population has grown by 1,300 inmates in seven months.

With the Correction Department subject to the same budget restraints as other state agencies, the spokesman said the alternatives to adding significantly to the system's capacity include more probationary sentences, more lenient parole procedures, expanded work release programs, and sentencing additional persons to mental health, conditional release or drug treatment programs.

Other commission recommendations for Attica included review of the temporary release program, establishment of regulations for visiting rooms, modernization of the communications system within the prison, and a financial audit of the prison's commissary operation.

The recommendations dealt with many of the same complaints mentioned in an inmate petition sent to Ward July 4.

A spokesman for the commission said the report was drafted prior to a disorder by 200 inmates July 15 and that a report on that incident was being prepared.

CH Restores Power

KINGSTON—Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. this morning restored service to virtually all the customers remaining without power because of Hurricane Belle, "the worst storm we've had in our system in the past 16 years," a company spokesman said.

"We want to express our appreciation to customers for their patience and understanding while we worked to restore service under very adverse conditions," said Frank Bailey, Central Hudson office manager in Kingston.

The hurricane hit Monday and early Tuesday affected about 36,000 customers in the Central Hudson service area stretching over four counties and about 2,600 square miles.

POLICE BEAT

Injured in Accident

ROSENDALE—A West Hurley man is in poor condition in the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital after a one-car accident in Rosendale.

Hurley State Police report Eric Anderson, 21, Broad Street, West Hurley, was northbound on Lucas Avenue in Rosendale when he failed to negotiate a left turn. His vehicle went off the right side of the road and struck a tree.

Anderson was taken to Benedictine Hospital by Don's Ambulance at about 1 a.m. this morning.

Battle Barn Fire

Fire fighters from East Kingston, Glasco and Ulster Hose Companies fought a barn fire in East Kingston for three hours Wednesday afternoon, saving 80 per cent of the structure.

East Kingston Fire Chief Tom Cole says only the north side of a barn on Ulster Landing Road in East Kingston was destroyed in a fire which began around 3 p.m. Wednesday. Cole said 40 fire fighters with seven pieces of apparatus had the blaze under control within 10 minutes and there were no injuries. Cole said state police will be investigating the cause of the fire.

Search for Body

The Ulster County Sheriff's Department searched the Rondout Creek Wednesday night for a body spotted by two girls who were fishing.

Kingston Police said the body was sighted near Turk's Boat Basin on the Rondout Creek, bobbing up and down in swift current. Kingston Police notified the sheriff's department.

William Young volunteered his boat for the search of the Rondout and the Hudson. While searching unsuccessfully for the body, Young and Deputy Sheriff Nunzio Igro and Sergeant David Hughes found a couple stranded in their boat on the Hudson about four miles north of Rondout Creek at around 12:30 this morning. The couple, a Mr. and Mrs. Wood had been stranded since 8 p.m. due to mechanical difficulty. The Woods were taken to the Dock and Dine—cold and wet, but otherwise alright.

The search for the body was abandoned at around 1 a.m.

Harassment Arrests

Saugerties Town Police arrested a Saugerties couple on a warrant issued by Town of Ulster Judge Arthur Reilly for aggravated harassment.

Town Police said they arrested Richard Donato, 23, and Ginger Donato, 19, Route 212 Saugerties, around 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. The Donatos were turned over to the state police who brought them before Judge Reilly. Both were remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $25 bail for appearance at a later date.

The Donatos face charges of aggravated harassment for allegedly threatening the life of an employee of the Ulster County SPCA. The SPCA has custody of two dogs which formerly belonged to the Donatos, but were taken away by Dog Warden Gary Liesendahl because it was reported that they were left alone in the house for long periods of time without food or water.

The Donatos also face charges of cruelty to animals in Saugerties Court. Richard Donato, when arrested by Saugerties Town Police was also charged with possession of stolen property in the third degree because police found him in possession of a US mailbag.

School Burglary

Saugerties Town Police report a burglary at the Mt. Marion School.

Police say burglars gained entry by smashing a side window at the school and made off with three cassette tape players valued at $65 each.

Poisons Are Studied in Legion Deaths

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Medical experts are examining two poisons—one found in antifreeze, the other used in making plastics—and the metal cadmium as possible causes of the mysterious illness that killed 27 persons connected with an American Legion convention last month. The Allegheny County Coroner's office said Wednesday it had found evidence of a poison often used in antifreeze in the bodies of two victims, who died of the so-called "Legionnaire's Disease."

Dr. Denis Lucey, special assistant to state Health Secretary Leonard Bachman, said cadmium and nickel carbonyl also were under investigation in the mystery.

Cadmium is sometimes found in ice cube trays and air conditioning ducts. Nickel carbonyl is used in the manufacture of plastics and was described by Dr. F. William Sunderman Sr. as "about the most toxic gas used commercially."

No evidence of the crystals was found in the kidneys of the third local victim, Wecht said.

This cow seems reluctant to go anywhere.

Saugerties Schools Mull Garage

SAUGERTIES—Saugerties School District residents will have the opportunity to vote Oct. 12 on whether they want to spend up to $100,000 to construct a new bus garage.

The board of education unanimously adopted a resolution at this week's meeting calling for the special district meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Cahill Elementary School on Main Street. The question, as outlined by school attorney Louis Francello, was on setting up a capital reserve fund to build the garage.

The money would not come directly from property taxes, according to the resolution, but from the sale of school properties. Two former elementary schools have been sold in recent years to private parties, forming the basis of these funds.

If district voters do not approve of the expenditure, the funds would probably be plowed back into the general fund. The special district meeting will precede a regular school board meeting.

In other matters, Francello said contract negotiations with the Saugerties Teachers Association have not progressed appreciably. PERB fact finder Barry Taylor of Troy has taken deposition from both the STA and the district negotiating teams and will return at an unspecified time to attempt to mediate the contract dispute. Francello said that this was the reverse of usual fact finding procedure.

In an unrelated incident, the STA has filed an unfair labor practice charge against the district involving a dispute about the status of the guidance personnel contract, which expired June 30. The district, in turn, has filed a counter charge, according to District Superintendent Daniel J. ...

Board President Robert Francello completed committee assignments of board members. He will serve on negotiations and transportation committees with Earl Benjamin as chairman.

Other committee chairpersons are: Ann Bogert, operations; Barbara Stevens, curriculum; the Rev. John Needham, personnel; and John O'Rourke, budget.

It was reported that the tax rates for this coming year and the warrant were not yet available, and a special board meeting was called by Francello for 7:30 p.m., Aug. 31 to review rates and tax collection dates.

Regarding personnel, Francello commended Rev. Needham and Lee for having worked very hard at maintaining full employment for our teachers' under the budget.

Howard Wittenbecher, BOCES representative, informed the board of the fifth goal enumerated by the Ulster county BOCES board of trustees. "We hope to put a ceiling on some of the salaries that have alarmed people in our organization of BOCES administrators," he said. Robert Francello suggested that some correlation be drawn between the number of students the administrators are responsible for and their pay. "I'm sure Mr. (Jack) Roosa would embrace that," he added.

In other business: It was announced that the full curriculum report would be available by either the September or October board meeting.

The board approved the 1976-77 Title I program, to receive $89,000 in federal monies this year.

Trustees approved awarding of numerous bids and personnel replacements and resignations.

And O'Rourke suggested the district adopt school "heroes" to encourage patriotism, stating that this was the practice in the Russian Soviet school system.

•Who Slew the President Still Debated After Thirteen Years

—Why did Georgia Senator Richard Russell, a commission member and no radical, call the completed report a "sordidly incompetent document," and refuse to accept the single bullet thesis?

—If one bullet passed through Kennedy's neck, through Texas Governor John Connally's chest and wrist, finally lodging in his thigh and emerging unscathed on a stretcher at Parkland Hospital, why were the Warren Commission and CBS unable to duplicate such an energetic and hardy projectile in their tests?

"I think that political assassinations in this country are important enough that it's vital to find out if there are any conspiracies or not," said Wemple.

"A conspiracy doesn't mean that the FBI or the CIA were involved. All it means is that some poor lonely man didn't do it alone," he added.

Rush Harp knew something was wrong the day after the murder. "When the killing took place, I heard they found a Mauser rifle. The next day I heard they found a Carcano rifle, a vastly different weapon," he said.

"The two police who found the rifle swore that it was a Mauser. One of them owned a sporting-goods store," he added.

"The Warren Commission later explained that the Mauser was used by a Secret Service agent on the roof. There was no Secret Service agent on the roof," Wemple said.

Another piece of news from Dallas on November 23 deeply disturbed Harp. "I read about how Lyndon Johnson ordered the limousine to be cleaned up. Right away, I knew he was covering up the murder of his predecessor."

Harp, a long-time member of the National Rifle Association, explained what evidence was destroyed when the limousine was cleaned: "A gun man knows you lose one thing—your trajectory. When a bullet goes through two places, you can go back and find within inches the track of the bullet."

"Then I watched the Garrison case, and I knew he was digging up the truth," he said.

Although many condemned Garrison's 1967 trial of New Orleans businessman Clay Shaw as persecution of an innocent man, it was revealed in 1974 that Shaw, who was to die suspiciously that year, was the station chief of the Central Intelligence Agency in New Orleans.

"Attorney General Ramsey Clark was trying to stop Garrison, so he tried out of the National Archives pieces of evidence: X-rays of Kennedy's skull. If he had known about guns, he never would have released the evidence," Harp alleged.

He explained that the Mannlicher-Carcano rifle uses copper-sheathed ammunition. The hole in the rear of Kennedy's skull shows traces of lead around the edges, according to Harp. "But any metal left by the Carcano bullet would be copper," he said.

The Mannlicher-Carcano rifle was an expensive weapon manufactured by Italy before the first world war. It was known as the gun that never killed anyone because of its poor construction, Harp said.

"It was a very inaccurate gun—not well made. The ammunition clip loaded straight down, meaning any telescopic sight had to be offset," Harp explained.

But the scope on the rifle was offset to the left, and Oswald was right-handed. Fired in that condition, Harp alleged, it would be impossible to get any accuracy.

The FBI marksmen, before trying to duplicate Oswald's feat with his rifle for the Warren Commission, put shims under the scope to align it properly.

Wemple believes that the most intriguing part of the alleged conspiracy is not the assassination itself but the 13 year effort to cover up the story.

"Oswald was an FBI informer and had CIA clearance. Even if the agencies weren't involved in the conspiracy, they would have reasons to be involved in a cover-up," he said.

"One thing we're looking for is patterns—evidence destroyed, witnesses died, a news blackout. A lot of people died under suspicious circumstances," he alleged.

"Strangely enough, those who testified there was a conspiracy died. None of the other witnesses died. In a lot of the deaths, no autopsy was done. In three years, 18 of these people died. An actuary from the London Sunday Times calculated that the probability of this happening by chance was 1 in 100,000,000,000,000,000," he charged.

"When you read the Warren Commission testimony, there were a lot of people who were stabbed, shot, or threatened. Of course, they changed their testimony—that's the blemish on the report," he explained.

Wemple has compiled two thick notebooks of persons involved with the Kennedy assassination, and with the Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King, and George Wallace shootings, which he believes may be related.

Many of the names are people unrelated to the Kennedy case, and many others are persons so peripherally involved that it's hard to term their deaths suspicious. But some other persons raise doubts.

Among those persons Wemple has listed are:

—Sam Giancana: "He was contracted via Robert Maheu of the Hughes empire by the CIA to kill Castro. When the Senate investigating committee came to Giancana, the man who survived 50 years of Chicago gang wars was dead," Wemple said.

—J. Garrett Underhill: A Pentagon intelligence official and military affairs editor of Life, he claimed that people within the CIA killed Kennedy, and that he would break open the case. He also alleged the CIA would try to kill him. He was found in bed with a bullet hole behind his left ear. The coroner ruled the death a suicide. Underhill was right-handed.

—Albert Guy Bogard, a Dallas used car dealer who claimed a man named Lee Oswald took a test drive on November 9, 1963, although the Warren Report claims Oswald was elsewhere and couldn't drive. Bogard passed a lie detector test, but the commission chose to disregard his testimony. He was severely beaten shortly thereafter.

He was found dead in his car with the windows rolled up and a hose from the tailpipe poking over a window. His death was ruled a suicide. At the time of his death, he was engaged to be married.

—Jim Koethe, a reporter for the Dallas Times-Herald and in attendance at a meeting with Jack Ruby on November 24, 1963. His body was found nude; his notes for his book on the assassination and the Dallas elite missing.

A man arrested for selling his belongings a week later was not indicted by a grand jury on the instructions of Dallas District Attorney Henry Wade. That man was sent to jail for life three months later on another charge.

Wade claimed that Oswald was the sole assassin as early as November 24, 1963, according to an Associated Press dispatch reprinted in the Freeman.

Time magazine, in an article debunking the cover theory, said Koethe was involved in homosexual activities in Dallas.

The most suspicious death of all, aside from Kennedy's, is Oswald's. Conspiracy theorists claim Jack Ruby, who had close ties to anti-Castro Cubans and organized crime, killed Oswald to silence him.

Oswald had steadfastly maintained his innocence during that weekend, and had at one time said, "I'm a patsy."

Although there are as many conspiracy theories around as critics, the most plausible suggest a cabal of anti-Castro Cubans and Mafiosi, both eager to see Castro destroyed, and suspecting Kennedy wouldn't do it.

Because those Cubans, like those caught at the Watergate, had many CIA connections, the theory goes, the CIA has been interested in keeping the case quiet.

Other theories raise questions about the "two Oswalds", E. Howard Hunt, the CIA agent who masterminded the Watergate break-in, and the possibility that Oswald was chosen as the fall guy because his supposedly communist leanings would stir up anti-communist reaction.

Against any sort of conspiracy theory and for the conclusion reached by the Warren Commission is the thought of the greatest student of conspiracy ever, Niccolò Machiavelli.

The safest conspiracy is that of one man only, said the Florentine. Or, more bluntly, in 13 years, why hasn't anyone squealed?

The shooting of Dallas Patrolman J.D. Tippit on the afternoon of November 22 also tends to support the commission's conclusion.

The Tippit shooting is "the Rosetta Stone to the solution of Kennedy's murder", in the words of David Belin, a commission staff lawyer and defender of the report.

If Oswald didn't shoot Tippit, who did? And why? The Warren Report said Tippit had stopped Oswald because he noticed his revolver. Oswald was first arrested on the charge of killing Tippit, not Kennedy. If he could shoot down a police officer on the street, why couldn't he kill Kennedy?

But most conspiracy theorists, aside from Mark Lane, agree that Oswald was involved in some way. Oswald's involvement in the assassination does not preclude the participation of others.

David Wemple doesn't believe that a new Congressional investigation could get at the truth behind the assassination of John F. Kennedy. "I'm pessimistic about any new government investigation. If the truth has been covered up for 13 years, how long can we rely on an official investigation?" For further reading and

Tal, Zaatar Falls to Christians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Tank-backed Christian forces stormed into the Tal Zaatar Palestinian camp and announced its fall today following a final, fierce assault on the 54th day of their siege.

Palestinian spokesmen denied the camp had fallen but independent reports indicated that for all practical purposes the Christians had captured the shell-battered, 74-acre camp in southeast Beirut.

The Christians were reported to be combing through the camp's ruined buildings and shantytown shacks for scattered pockets of sniper fire—said to be the only resistance left after the all out assault this morning.

The tank-backed action was the 71st major Christian attack on Tal Zaatar since the siege of the Palestinian camp began six weeks ago.

The radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party announced that Tal Zaatar fell at 10 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT), while negotiations were underway between Christian leaders, the international Red Cross and an Arab League mediator to arrange a peaceful evacuation of the camp.

The radio said about 7,000 persons, including some fighters but mostly civilians, women and children, had been captured. They were herded into a convoy of about 50 trucks and released at the border between Christian East Beirut and Moslem West Beirut after questioning.

A photographer who witnessed the scene said they streamed across the border on foot, a few running but most walking, some crying but many carrying themselves with what he called "an unbelievable, eerie dignity."

Buckley's Stance...Views Differ

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Views of Sen. James Buckley's possible presidential bid range from its being a ploy to deny a first ballot nomination for President Ford to a serious mistake for his own senatorial re-election chances.

A limited survey Wednesday of some of New York State's delegates to the next week's Republican National Convention indicated many delegates were surprised by Buckley's late blooming campaign.

On the other hand, none of the 11 delegates responding to UPI said they would cast a first-ballot vote for Buckley. As of now, Ford claims 129 votes in the 154-member delegation, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan claims 19 and six are holding to their original uncommitted status.

In New York City, meanwhile, a Buckley spokesman said "we're still running for the Senate."

A general theme expressed by several delegates was that Buckley's possible candidacy would siphon away votes from both Ford and Reagan, thus denying either man a first ballot nomination. Under those circumstances, several delegates said, Ford's chances would appear to dim on a second ballot.

Possible Bid Seen Mistake by Some

pected there would be several other "surprise" candidates before the convention opens Monday.

"I'm surprised by the whole thing," said Richard Hanlon of Syracuse, Onondaga County party chairman. "If it really happens I think it precludes a decision on the first ballot." Hanlon also is supporting President Ford for the nomination.

Joseph Sussillo of Brooklyn, a Reagan backer, also expressed surprise and predicted that if the Conservative-Republican New Yorker became a candidate "it would throw the convention into a second ballot."

However, Mrs. Martha Zuris of Iliion, a strong Ford delegate, said Buckley's candidacy "wouldn't make any difference to me. I still intend to vote for President Ford."

Several of the delegates contacted asked not to be named to prevent any pressure being brought to bear. A few other delegates refused to answer any questions.

Sussillo, expressing an opinion shared by several other delegates, said he thought Buckley's candidacy "might shake loose some Ford delegates." He said some persons only lukewarm to Ford but unable to support Reagan might well want to cast their votes for Buckley.

Sussillo conceded that the similar views held by Buckley and Reagan also could cost Reagan support on the first ballot but that if Ford was denied the nomination on the first ballot, it was unlikely the President could gain the nod on a succeeding ballot.

The Brooklyn Reagan backer also said he thought there might be some "shaky Ford support upstate" that might switch to Buckley.

"If Buckley can pull votes from both on the first (ballot), so that nobody gets it, then it's a whole new ballgame on the second," said one Ford supporter, who asked not to be identified.

In Kansas City, state chairman Richard Rosenbaum said he advised Buckley by telephone to disassociate himself from the presidential boomlet because it would be "counter-productive."

Fair Days Ahead

Prize cows steaming in the early morning air, fat tomatoes awaiting the judges' eyes, young 4-H'ers readying their produce, livestock and handiworks for display in hopes of winning ribbons...

It's county fair time again in Ulster County. The annual fair which opened this morning at the fairground in New Paltz may not be the biggest or most publicized event of its kind but it offers something for just about everyone and gives the county's young people a chance to show the world they're just as "into" hard work and doing well as their forebears ever were.

It's also a reminder of the importance of agriculture to Ulster County's economy and way of life. The pride and independent spirit of the farmer and his love of the earth are still alive despite the inroads of bad weather, high taxes and low profits.

Non-farmers in the community will find a trip to the fair worthwhile—not for the sake of a last look at a quaint and fading institution, but as a way of taking part in a thriving and apparently indestructible lifestyle.

Hofbauer Needs Board Approval

Dear Editor:

Some of our friends are missing the point entirely. At last week's press conference, Mr. Hofbauer was criticized for his method of presenting some of his directives, not necessarily the content. He should seek full approval of the board before setting policy.

Every parent, I am sure, is in favor of a closed campus when possible. That is why the Board of Education has hired architects to look into building expansion to safely house the increased high school population, which would eliminate the need for open campus.

Mr. Hofbauer should work with all nine members of the Board of Education, not just his four friends, who, coincidentally, are his committee chairmen.

Freeman Abandoned Downtown

Dear Editor:

Talk about hypocrisy! Your entire plant and operation moves out of downtown and now you have the audacity to proclaim in an editorial your support to help the area.

If you had had the common decency to look into the future, your own operation could have been the forerunner in helping to rebuild downtown.

It is still not too late to refurbish your old building and give it to the community.

As far as I'm concerned your lack of interest has been shown by your actions already.

Student Defends Open Campus

Dear Editor:

Mr. Hofbauer's suggestion of closed campus in the high school is slightly unrealistic. As someone who has just graduated from the high school, I feel that I have more information about high school conditions and the attitudes of the students than someone just observing.

First of all, because the school is so crowded, not everyone who has lunch during a certain lunch period can fit into the cafeteria. Despite the fact that many students don't go the cafeteria at all, it is usually jammed packed anyway.

Also, the closed campus study hall is a waste of time. The students who want to study will study no matter what. And, despite the concern Mr. and Mrs. Plonski put forth in their letter printed in the paper Aug. 9, the extra free time will not cause the students to cause more trouble. Those people who cause trouble on open campus will cause just as much trouble on a closed campus situation, since the confinement of the students will cause more interpersonal friction that could be avoided. But the people who get into trouble are very much a minority of students. I feel that the rest of the students are mature enough to handle the responsibility that open campus offers.

Respectfully yours,

Fisherman Took Friends Along

Dear Editor:

In a recent letter to you printed on Monday Mr. Fred Faerber III stated that I had 13½ years of private fishing in Chodokee Lake. However, Mr. Faerber failed to mention that I was at least allowed to bring with me as many guests as I wanted which, by the way, Mr. Faerber, I have always done.

Also, Mr. Faerber, the Highland Training School let anybody with a New York State fishing license fish the lake up until three years ago at which time, due to littering, etc., they closed it; but it was open to members of the Lloyd Rod and Gun Club. So you see, Mr. Faerber, I didn't have 13½ years of private fishing.

Mr. Faerber also speaks of half a loaf. Half a loaf of a lake in my own home town? Chodokee Lake doesn't need 8,000 members fishing in it, out of which approximately 600 may pay taxes in the Town of Lloyd.

Mr. Faerber, I think you should look good and hard at the programs in the Town of Lloyd, one of which was to have a picnic area and fishing for the Town of Lloyd residents. Why didn't you check with our town supervisor, Jon Decker, about the program he was trying to set up for the town residents? You went to the state without the courtesy of checking with the local town board.

No wonder sportsmen have a bad name. Mr. Faerber, you may be trespassing on town property.

The Arterial Isn't Needed

Dear Editor:

Your Leavitt article on the arterial—five years ago the state conducted a public hearing on the pains for a new Route 209.

Now the state wants to spend $35 million on a two-mile bypass which is needed like a hole in the head.

The incompetence of Sen. Schermerhorn is shown to the utmost when he states it is necessary and must be done.

Couldn't he figure out how to spend this $35 million more constructively by using it on Routes 209 or 9W? 9W hasn't been drastically changed since they built it in the 1920s—50 to 60 years ago.

Don't Knock Wild Game

Dear Editor:

In answer to David Stalzer: please forgive me, Mr. Indian, I'm also of Indian descent.

Killing animals in a slaughterhouse for your table makes it right, but to kill a deer for my table is wrong?

I and many more like me like venison as well as beef, etc. If you have never tried wild game, don't knock it. You must be of the frozen food generation! Or a "junk food junkie." Everybody today has it easy, all they have to do is go to the store and buy, buy, buy!!

You are a person who shuts his eyes and forgets how and where the meat came from in the stores!

Ford's New York Playmate

WASHINGTON—Jerry Ford, Jerry Ford!

Jerry Ford became President because Richard Nixon fell into Watergate. Now the Democrats are trying to make a 1976 presidential campaign issue of Watergate and of Ford's pardon of Nixon. And here is Jerry Ford playing a little game of his own that harks directly back to Watergate.

Ford feels his little game is safe because his playmate is a powerful Democrat in Congress. But the parallels between Ford's little game and Nixon's big game are too obvious. Other more powerful Democrats are watching.

Ford's Democratic playmate is Rep. James Delaney, an aging New York congressman who is distinguished only by his political clout. Next January, when Ford hopes to be sworn in as President, Delaney expects to be sworn in as chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Although Delaney is a powerful Democrat in Congress and Ford is a powerful Republican in the White House, political distance has not kept them apart. As he has aged, Delaney has become more conservative. In 1970, he endorsed the election of Conservative-Republican Sen. James Buckley of New York. When Nixon was President and since Ford has become President, Delaney has voted in Congress more frequently with the Republicans than with the Democrats. There are of course a number of conservative Democrats in Congress who commonly vote with the Republicans. But Delaney and Ford have been uncommonly close.

Early in 1975, Ford gave Delaney's only son, Patrick, a cushy job in the White House. The White House, being Ford's stronghold, presumably is for Republicans only. But Patrick Delaney assures me he is a Democrat, just like dear old dad.

And now Ford wants to give Patrick Delaney an even cushier job and one he can keep for five years, even if Ford loses his stronghold. Ford has nominated Patrick Delaney to be a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Fortunately for Patrick, the SEC by law is a politically bipartisan agency and the vacancy to which he has been nominated must be filled by a Democrat.

Unfortunately for Ford and Delaney, the SEC was sucked into Watergate because Nixon also nominated political hacks to the agency. Early on, the SEC was drawn into the International Telephone & Telegraph scandal. Later on, Nixon was paid $200,000 by a crook named Robert Vesco who hoped Nixon would spring him from SEC fraud charges. Still later on, one of Nixon's SEC chairmen was ousted in the wake of the ITT scandal and another pleaded guilty to perjury charges growing out of the Vesco bribery.

As Watergate welled up outside him, morality welled up inside Nixon. In an effort to save himself, Nixon finally nominated qualified and honest regulators to the SEC. Nixon even nominated to the commission the very SEC staff official who had pursued Vesco, a thoroughly honest and qualified lawyer named Irving Pollack.

The SEC today is probably more qualified and honest than at any time in its 40-year history. It has forced scores of giant corporations to disclose illegal political payoffs here and abroad. It has done its job of protecting widows and orphans and other public investors from Wall Street stock manipulators.

And now, almost on the eve of the 1976 election, Jerry Ford plays his little game, hoping to pick up a little bit of political support by nominating a political hack to the SEC. Patrick Delaney, age 35, is qualified to be an SEC member only because he spent eight years on Wall Street selling stocks to widows, orphans and other investors. Which is like sending a fox to guard the chicken coop. Which is what Nixon did.

Ford's little Watergate game appears to be safe because the Democrats in Congress were taking money from fat cats while Nixon was taking Vesco's money. Which explains why neither Congress nor the White House has acted finally and effectively to prevent more Watergates, big or little. Which explains Ford and Delaney. But, on the eve of the 1976 presidential election, the parallels between Nixon's big game and Ford's little game are too obvious.

Carrying The Coals to Newcastle

WASHINGTON—A place gets an image and there isn't a darn thing you can do about it. For a while everybody thought Washington D.C. was one big Watergate. That was bad enough but now, since all the sex scandals, out-of-town-think of our town as Sodom-on-the-Potomac.

The other day I heard from Ralph, an acquaintance out of the past, who announced he was in D.C. for the Bicentennial.

"How's the old boy?" he chortled on the telephone.

"Fine, Ralph. How's your second—or is it third wife?"

"Third," he said. "She's not with me. I told her, 'Honey, I only get to Washington once in my life, and if I brought someone as sexy as you along, it would be like bringing coals to Newcastle.' Ha, ha, ha."

"You were always one to come up with a fresh phrase, Ralph. What did she say to that?"

"She said, 'You can take the man out of the boy, but you can't take the boy out of the man.' And she let me go. Ida's a great girl. Okay, let's forget the small talk. I have only three days. Where's the action?"

"What action?" I asked.

"Aw c'mon, get off it. The houseboats, the parties in the lobbyists' penthouse apartments, the skinny-dipping in the Georgetown pools—all the stuff I've been reading about."

"Ralph, you're not going to believe this, but I've never seen any of it. It may exist, but I'd be the last guy to know about it if it did."

"You're putting me on," Ralph said. "This town is supposed to be hotter than Havana in its heyday. I'm your buddy and I'm discreet as hell. Just give me a few numbers. I'll take it from there."

"Okay," I said. "If you go down to 14th Street there's a go-go bar and two movies that specialize in X-rated movies, and two bookstores that sell 'The Story of O.' But don't use my name."

"Listen, we got more than that in Des Moines," Ralph said. "I'm talking about the secretaries who can't type and the typists who aren't allowed to be secretaries, and the runners-up of the Miss Cherry Blossom Festival. That's the kind of girls I want to meet."

"I don't know any of these girls, Ralph. Why don't you go to a singles bar in Bethesda? Maybe you'll find the girl of your dreams."

"Give me the name of someone who chairs a committee in Congress," he said. "Just give me the name of one person up there you know and I won't bother you again."

"Bella Abzug."

"Give me another name," he said.

"Ralph, the papers have been overplaying the sex scandals because they're sick and tired of writing about Jimmy Carter, Jerry Ford and Ronald Reagan. Maybe all these things happened and maybe again they didn't. But you can't just go up to the Capitol and find an orgy. In spite of what you read, it isn't like that."

"Sure," he said, "you guys are trying to keep it all to yourselves."

"Well, I'm a taxpayer and I got as much right to have fun as any congressman or senator in Washington. We people back home are getting sick and tired of our elected officials making hay at our expense."

"Don't get sore at me, Ralph. If I knew where the action was I'd not only tell you, I'd go with you. But a big night for most of us who live here is to go to a Safeway supermarket and see if we can get out for less than $100."

"So you're not going to help me," Ralph said. "You think I'm not good enough to meet a receptionist or a girl that can't take shorthand. Well, I won't forget this, buddy. I have other sources in Washington to call."

"I'm sorry, Ralph. I don't know how to put it, but I think you came to the wrong place for action."

"Where should I have gone?"

"Newcastle."

Bureaucrats' Antipoverty Snarl

WASHINGTON—Apparently, no one in Washington knows whether the government's antipoverty programs are doing any good.

The Community Services Administration oversees the spending on the poor. This amounts to an annual $1.5 billion in federal, state and local funds.

Yet Community Services is so ensnared in red tape, so short of qualified people and so woefully inefficient that it is unable to evaluate the programs it is supposed to administer.

This is the aggrieved conclusion of the General Accounting Office, which has checked the books of Community Services.

In a report intended for official eyes only, the GAO charged that Community Services received less than half the required progress reports, that some of the reports reaching Washington were inadequate and that many local agencies hadn't even established a self-evaluation system.

Community Services, therefore, couldn't be certain whether local antipoverty projects met "national standards and program objectives," declared the GAO.

Footnote: A spokesman for the ensnared agency said steps have been taken to correct the situation.

HOTLINE: The Virgin Islands' congressional delegate, Ron DeLugo, was dissatisfied with the telephone service between St. Thomas and the U.S. mainland. He, therefore, demanded and got a special line installed in his St. Thomas office. This will cost the taxpayers $8,625.96 a year.

The installation alone cost $691.04. But DeLugo will soon be moving into a new federal building. It will cost another $179 to move the phone.

It took the intervention of former House Public Buildings Chairman Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., to arrange the $8,625.96 hotline. He pushed for the installation after he had trouble telephoning Washington during a visit to the Virgin Islands last year.

DeLugo's expensive new telephone service has been working for several weeks now, but he still isn't satisfied. "The quality is quite poor," he told us.

PARTIAL ECLIPSE: Both the Senate and House have now passed "sunshine" bills to open up government meetings to public scrutiny. But the legislation contained a little too much sunshine to suit the Federal Reserve Board.

Chairman Arthur Burns didn't like a provision which would have required government agencies to keep transcripts of closed meetings. The purpose was to have a record available in case the courts later ruled the meetings had been wrongly closed.

Burns contended that keeping a detailed transcript would obstruct free discussion. He also argued that some of the board's deliberations were quasi-judicial and, therefore, should be conducted privately.

Burns told bankers how he felt in a recent San Francisco speech. Suddenly, local bankers began badgering their congressmen to delete the provision Burns didn't like.

A word from a banker, whose support most congressmen covet, can influence how they vote. Result: The disputed section was efficiently eliminated before the weakened bill passed the House by a 390-to-5 vote.

CONDOM CRISIS: Our foreign aid bureaucrats are determined, apparently, to reduce the birth rate in Indonesia. We recently reported that U.S. Ambassador David Newsom stopped a shipment of 50 million condoms to Indonesia after discovering the country already had a three-year stockpile.

In a priority cable to the State Dept., Newsom solemnly pledged "to greatly expand usage rates," but pleaded: "Ship Indonesia no, repeat, no condoms."

Unimpressed, the Washington bureaucrats indicated they knew what was best for Indonesia. But investigators had already flown to Indonesia to check into the birth control program. They have now prepared a private "briefing memorandum" for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

They found an excess of $1.4 million in the embassy's birth control budget. At two cents a piece, that's about 70 million condoms too many.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: President Ford seldom loses his temper, but he reportedly was furious when he first heard that his campaign manager, Rogers Morton, had said the Republican nomination was still a toss-up. Our sources say the President snorted: "That dumb S.O.B." For the record, a White House spokesman denied the presidential cussing.

The tax reform battle became so bitter in the Senate that senators wound up shouting at each other. Sens. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., and Robert Dole, R-Kas., yelled at Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. They accused the tax reformer of impugning the dignity of the Senate Finance Committee. Afterward, Dole faced down Kennedy again and gave him another private tongue-lashing.

Seventy-five White House aides, who draw their salaries from the taxpayers, have campaigned for President Ford. Their travelling expenses were picked up by the President's campaign committee. But their salaries were paid straight out of the taxpayers' pockets. Spokesmen contended that the aides earned their White House pay and campaigned for the President on their own time.

Senate Finance Chairman Russell Long, D-La., has found a novel way to influence his colleagues. During the tax debate he wrote a letter to the Senate wives to push some of his tax views. "Never underestimate the power of a wife," he wrote. Then he went on to argue: "Those who bake the pie should have a slice of it."

Advice to The Moneylorn

Dear Johnny: I got a problem. Those commies that live in downtown Kingston are trying to kill the arterial. I been a successful construction man now for fifteen years, and if those pinkos are allowed to stop the arterial, I'll have to keep sitting around in this gin mill drinking up my unemployment check.

I bet I drop $15 a day here on beer alone. Well, maybe a shot once in a while. And no self-respecting man can sit at a bar seven-eight hours without buying a round sometime.

Now I wouldn't have to sit here so much if it wasn't for them socialists. They're taking food out of my kids' mouths, not to mention the wife.

She keeps nagging all the time about me sitting here drinking up money. I keep telling her I got nothing else to do, but she don't listen. Them commies are breaking up my happy home.

I'd stay home and watch TV if I could buy a new set. But it's embarrassing to sit there watching a five-year-old set knowing all the time that your neighbor's got a brand-new 22-inch color set. How the heck can I buy a new color TV with an unemployment check?

What I want to know is do those pinkos have the right to make me sit here getting fat on beer and listening to my wife nag at me all the time? Signed: Fed Up in Kingston.

Dear Fed: If they aren't commies, they're at least cheapskates who refuse to give up their land to help you get a new color set. You can do one of two things: tell them to get the hell out of your way, or open up a gin mill of your own. Probably the latter would be less trouble. Think positive.

Dear Johnny: I'm an executive with Central Hudson. My salary is roughly $50,000 a year. I realize that may sound like a lot of money to some people, but the fact is I'm possession-poor. I have a beautiful home in Stone Ridge and a modest ten-room cottage on Lake George, plus a Lincoln Continental for myself, a Mercedes for my wife, and a Corvette for my teenage son. (Well, he moaned and whined, and when my son moans and whines, it's hellish.)

In short, I'm up to my ears in payments and services. We need two gardeners, otherwise the grounds look like just anybody's back yard. Well, those gardeners are whooping it up on nearly $3 an hour. Then there's taxes. The hell of it is that most of us have to pay them, and I'm not rich enough yet to evade them.

I know my life-style is extravagant, but it's my right as a high wage earner. Now, with this inflation, I risk losing a gardener. And my son wouldn't know a hedge clipper from a hose.

But to top that, the company is considering withholding my raise this year. If they do, it could mean disaster: I would be reduced to Fords, Volkswagens, and one gardener. Our swimming would be restricted to our pool. Naturally, I would have to get rid of the Chris Craft on Lake George, and up there, without a boat, the "in" people snub you. We'd have to go elsewhere for vacation.

I could get angry at the company for refusing me my rightful raise, but in my position it's not smart to criticize the company. It's hands are tied by environmental demands, anyway. I read it in a memo.

(You can't blame the oil companies for taking advantage of a windfall. Any fool knows you charge what the market will bear. If our oil expenses are up, well, that's life.)

So where can I turn to point the accusing finger but to those "people" who call themselves environmentalists?

We would be sailing along smoothly, raise and all, if Central Hudson's normal expansion into nuclear power were not being hampered so severely by these nuts. All this talk about clean air, clean water, clean land, nuclear waste, and the dangers of strontium, cesium, and God knows what all in the food chain is nothing but scare tactics. Besides, if there is any real danger from nuclear power, all we have to do is move the office a safe distance from the plant.

I for one, am proud to be able to tell you I don't know anything about strontium, cesium, and tritium. (I'm copying those strange words out of a propaganda pamphlet put out by obvious pinkos. I'm beginning to wonder if those words aren't derived from Russian.)

You see my problem. Here is a well-liked utility forced to hold back its raises by environmentalists and it can't counterattack because of some antiquated laws guaranteeing freedom of speech, etc. You just try sending the police to round them up. They'll have you in court. I don't mind telling you I mourn the passing of public hangings and trial by water and fire.

In other words, how can we cut those environmentalists off at the pass? Signed: Close to Tears in Stone Ridge.

Dear Close: A Volkswagen is certainly not a Lincoln. And it is not right for a pressure group to go around deflating the egos of the new aristocracy. If you will give me your Lake George cottage and the Chris Craft, I'd be glad to go to work on your self image.

Dear Johnny: I am a dedicated environmentalist. I drive a Volkswagen and spend all of my time fighting the monsters of this industrialized capitalistic system that exploits people and resources for no other reason than to wallow in luxury.

In fact, I am so dedicated that I refuse to speak to people who don't wear the same faded denims and work shirts I do. I even sneer at the enemy whenever I see him.

The fact that my father, who works for Mobil, sends me my living expenses makes no difference whatever. I can handle it. Would you say this makes me a hero? Signed: Very proud in Shokan.

Dear Very: You are definitely hero material. Whatever you do, don't take a job. You would have to get along with people who don't dress like you at all. This might expand your outlook to the point of confusion. If you will give me your Volkswagen and your father's address, I could probably get you a beat-up dump-truck, which is much more heroic vehicle than a Volkswagen.

Carter Already There As the 39th President

NEW YORK (UPI) — The managing editor of the Scribner-Bantam English Dictionary says he decided to "take a chance" and list Jimmy Carter as the 39th president of the United States in final page proofs.

In order to meet a January publication date, the proofs must go to press by Sept. 15, well before the nation's voters decide in November if Carter actually will become the next president.

"When I made the final changes on the dictionary, I decided to take a chance and put it in," said managing editor Walter Glantz, who says he is a Democrat but that Carter is a "little too conservative for my taste."

If Carter should lose, "it's no major flaw from a major lexicological standpoint," he said. "Some people will laugh about it, and to other people it will be a collector's item. The more I think about it, the more I would be inclined to just leave it."

The entry in page proofs reads: "Carter, James — kart'er — n (1924-....) 39th president of the U.S. 1977-...."

The entry for "Ford, Gerald" lists his term in office as 1974-1977. There is no listing for "Reagan, Ronald."

Ford's 'Middle-of-The-Road Looks More Like The Left

So Jerry Ford wants a "middle of the road" man for his Vice President, someone "who fits the ideology I believe in." He has listed the present Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, Anne Armstrong, our Ambassador to Britain, Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson, former Gov. John Connally of Texas, Ronald Reagan and Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts as acceptable candidates.

The list is most interesting for what it conveys about Ford's understanding of "ideology." If Nelson Rockefeller or Elliot Richardson or Sen. Brooke are "middle of the road," it is only by courtesy of political death bed repentances that differ not a whit from the conversion of Ronald Reagan's Sen. Schweiker to a central position.

As a matter of fact, Schweiker impresses one as a better "middle of the road" man than either Rockefeller or Brooke. At least he holds to some conservative "social" beliefs; his feelings about abortion, the right to bear arms, defense, detente and prayer in public schools are quite genuinely in accord with Reagan's, and must, on any honest percentage table, do much to counteract the "extreme" of his big spending views. If Rockefeller and Brooke can cite any such "balance" in their ideological records, it quite escapes me.

When was Brooke, for example, vocal about anti-busing? When was Nelson Rockefeller unequivocal about abortion? Rocky, on national defense, is conservative enough, but he has never seen fit to repudiate Henry Kissinger, who was widely considered to be his gift to the Nixon Administration. John Connally appeals to "nationalists," but he is such a Big Government man that nobody could ever accuse him of true conservative leanings. It was Connally who tried to make Richard Nixon's price controls merchantable, thus putting him out of bounds for free market conservatives.

As for Elliot Richardson, he might, by stretching things a bit, be called a centrist. And Howard Baker is obviously middle-of-the-road. But neither Richardson nor Baker has a big constituency to recommend him. Baker might win Tennessee, but he would have to pull a miracle to counteract Jimmy Carter in the rest of the South. And would Anne Armstrong really bring out the housewives' vote?

Up to the very last days before the gathering of the Republicans in Kansas City both the Reaganites and the Fordites were playing it cozy on the subject of the platform. Neither side professed any wish to imperil the "unity" that the party must achieve if its final presidential choice is to have any chance to lick Jimmy Carter. But if the platform is an anemic compromise on such issues as detente, the Kissinger-Sonnenfeldt endorsement of Communist hegemony in Eastern Europe, the Panama Canal, abortion, the funding of African Marxist governments, busing and anti-gun legislation, it could have a dramatic effect on the balloting for the Presidential nomination.

At the very least any "liberal" dithering on the choice of words in the platform could bring conservatives who have boggled at Schweiker back to Reagan with a whoop and a holler. And who knows what effect some wishy-washy planks on busing and "Kissingerism" might have on the Mississippi and Pennsylvania delegations, whose votes can be crucial?

Reaganites have complained that Ford's control of the national party machinery might result in a "stacked" convention. It could do just that. But surely the memories of what happened in 1912, when Elihu Root and other supporters of William Howard Taft rigged the convention against Teddy Roosevelt, would tend to warn a "nice guy" like Jerry Ford against trying any real dirty work. delegates. But Eisenhower was a popular hero, as Jerry Ford is not. And the Reaganites are more in the mold of Teddy Roosevelt Bull Moosers than were the followers of Bob Taft, who, as "Mr. Republican," was the living embodiment of party loyalty. A bolt of Reaganites to Bill Rusher's embryonic Independent Party could generate a repeat, on a small but still dangerous scale, of 1912, when the Republican schism put Democrat Woodrow Wilson in the White House.

Utility Firm Given Two Days for a Quiz

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission ruled Wednesday that the Rochester Gas & Electric Corp. would be allowed only two additional days to cross-examine a witness in a hearing on proposed 765,000-volt transmission lines.

The hearings are considering health and safety aspects of the ultra-high-voltage lines. The state Power Authority has been granted partial certification for its proposed 765,000-volt line between Quebec and Marcy.

RG&E and Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. are seeking approval of a line linking the Rochester and Oswego areas.

The PSC said hearings would be held on Sept. 1 and 2 in Syracuse to give RG&E lawyers a chance for further cross-examination of Andrew Marino, a research biophysicist at the Syracuse Veterans Administration Hospital.

The commission noted that Marino, who testified about his studies of the affect of electric currents on rats and mice, had already been cross-examined for eight days.

The hearings had originally been scheduled to start Wednesday. They will be held at 10 a.m. in the State Office Building.

Louis Lewis drives up in prize-winning 1914 Renault.

'Americana' Sell-out

By CAROLINE SEITZ

WOODSTOCK—Furnishings, literally thousands, generally termed "Americana" and belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Lewis, will be sold at a three-day auction in Woodstock next week, culminating an antique business of more than 25 years. It is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 19, 20 and 21, starting at 10 a.m. each day, at the Lewis Home, 20 Elwyn Lane. Preview exhibition day will be Tuesday, 10 to 5 p.m.

A barn and carriage house are filled with items for sale; food on auction days will be catered by the Woodstock Methodist Church women, and there will be plenty of parking space at the home, the old Jonathan Hasbrouck place.

The auctioneer will be Richards C. Gilbert of Garrison who, as Mrs. Lewis reports, "has dealt with most banks on the eastern seaboard concerning settlement of estates." Several years ago he was in charge of the art sale for the Albany Institute of Art and he has conducted sales for Museum Village in Monroe and the Society of Preservation of Long Island. In the business for 15 years, he is of the fourth generation in the Gilbert family of auctioneers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis conducted the antique shop opposite the Woodstock Playhouse entrance for 25 years. The symbol in front of the door was the prize-winning, restored, 1914 Renault Landulet which will be auctioned at this sale, Saturday, 1 p.m. They expanded the business to include the Lewis Art Gallery. About five years ago they decided to sell the shop and confine business to their home at the Hasbrouck house which Lewis explains was built in 1790, the type erected by landed aristocracy. The original tract contained 600 acres.

After selling their shop, the Lewises continued to accumulate things as they diligently searched for articles to be acquired for specific places. Along with their interest in restoration and preservation they soon found themselves functioning as consultants and appraisers, fields in which they plan to continue.

Many pieces have become part of their lives. Mrs. Lewis moves from section to section of the massive collection pointing out the salient features, historical significance or sheer beauty, all with an inherent feeling of a connoisseur tradesman. "I buy emotionally and always have!" she emphasizes, as she moves slowly among the fascinating treasures from years of "stocking the shop."

"Americana" is found everywhere: dry sinks, dough boxes, iron bound trunks, a rosewood 17th Century ship's chest, bird-cage chairs, rush-seat chairs, stenciled chairs, tables, corner cupboard with straight and butterfly shelves, a kerosene wrought iron stove, an old still.

Items were brought from other lands: Portuguese 1600's vestment chest, huge wooden doors from a Castle in Spain (part of a collection of about 50 Spanish and Italian carved oak doors), a counter display case filled with pre-Columbian-era clay artifacts which the Lewises found on "digs" in Mexico; 3,000 certificates of 100 shares, 20 pounds each, The Common Fund, London, 20th Dec. 1869.

Authenticated works of noted artists will be sold including those of Marion Greenwood, Jo Cantine, Edward Chase (grandfather of TV's Chevy Chase), Birge Harrison, Hirosha Honda; prints and cut-outs by Albrecht Durer, Hunt Dietrich, N. Daumier; a bronze stag and doe by Mene.

Of local origin is the entire 11-foot counter with 25 drawers from an old grocery store in Port Ewen. Constructed of pine it retains the fragrances of old pine plus cinnamon and nutmeg spices. Nearby are the post office boxes. A butcher block shows the wear of time. As Mrs. Lewis describes it, "the edges are softened almost to the feel of velvet."

In another corner stands a huge glass-front corner closet from a Hudson River packet boat. In it are some toys: a concertina from Germany, a typewriter dated 1881 British patent; a ceramic creche made by Ada Fuller Smith, a former Latin teacher at Kingston High School.

In fact there are so many things that a whole cellar full of collectibles have been sorted out for cash sale on exhibition day. Many of these need restoring but, as Lewis says, "it makes a good hobby for the winter months or for relaxing from today's tensions."

In passing, he mentions that out in the barn, to be auctioned also is the old 1918 Cleveland, "running order, body needs work."

Children's Show Planned at Paltz

NEW PALTZ—The Yankee Peddler's Wagon will bring Kings and Courier Theatre Company's new children's musical, "A Yankee Peddler" to New Paltz for a performance Friday, Aug. 13, 7:30 p.m. at the McKenna Theatre.

The comic Yankee Peddler will be seen in the hour-long musical as he was seen in America's past: the back-packing peddler, the quack medicine salesman, and the inventor of the travelling show and the circus.

The seven member Company performs from the peddler's wagon, a replica of the old-time peddler's wagons. It doubles as a portable stage for outdoor and indoor performances. The Wagon magically transforms to set the scenes including a complete puppet circus stage.

Kings and Couriers Theatre Company is performing throughout New England this summer. Stops include South Street Seaport, New York City; Woodstock Playhouse and the O'Neill Theater Center and Camden, Maine.

The versatile company developed "A Yankee Peddler" from ensemble improvisations on New England folklore stories. Employing many theatre techniques including mime, puppetry, games, songs, dance, the Company retains the improvisatory atmosphere as it asks the audience to actively participate in the telling of the peddler's tale.

Tickets for "A Yankee Peddler" are available at the door for $1.

Toys for Tots Group Urges Festival Support

WOODSTOCK—Special compliments and a call for support of the Bavarian Festival at Andy Lee Field this Sunday come from the chairwomen of the 1975 Toys for Tots committee in the area.

The program of raising money and collecting gifts for needy children is sponsored by the DECA Club each year and the program is supported by individuals and associations in the community.

"More than any other organization, the Ontario Lions Club assists the DECA students in this yuletide project," report Pat Gray, Patricia Ticefelt and Cathy Tougas, chairwomen of the project last year. For this reason they urge attendance at the festival this Sunday from 1 to 7 p.m.

Featured this year at the fifth annual Bavarian Festival, sponsored by the Ontario Lions club, will be music by "Papa Bear," the dancing by "Die Bergvabunten Schuhplattler Dancers" and German food concession catered by Bob Schneller. Proceeds are used for the Lions Club community service activities.

Deadlines Nearing for State Fair Contests

SYRACUSE—Entry deadlines for this year's New York State Fair competitions are fast approaching with the first day of the fair set for Tuesday, Aug. 31.

If you have a rooster that can crow the loudest and the longest, the prettiest rose, the most elegant antique auto or the best beef or dairy cattle, you'll want to enter this year's competitions. Nearly $200,000 in premiums is being offered.

One of the most unique new competitions this year will be the 1976 Rooster Crowing Contest that will be held daily during the fair from 11 to 11:30 a.m. The final "Crow off" will be held at 11 a.m. on September 6 in the Poultry Show Building. The rooster producing the most crows on in one day within the half hour designated time wins the contest for that day. The two top winners each day will move into the "finals." The bird with the greatest number of crows in the competition will be judged the winner.

Entry deadlines in the Art & Home Center competitions have been extended. Culinary Arts is now set for Aug. 13 and Fine Arts for Aug. 17. Additional information and entry blanks are available from the Art & Home Center, State Fairgrounds, Syracuse, N.Y.

Guild Discusses Craft Show

WOODSTOCK—At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen Guild Shop, plans were discussed for the annual Craft Show in October. For the 17th time, creative area craftsmen will exhibit works of high quality in many varieties of crafts. Consigning members will soon receive letters about this event. # Ground Beef Is Good Source of Protein

By Phyllis W. Barlow
Cooperative Extension

KINGSTON — "Is ground beef a source of good protein in relation to its fat content?"

With "nutrition" a daily topic, this is high on the list of questions received at the Cooperative Extension office.

Ground beef is an excellent source of complete protein but can be high in saturated fat. Buying ground beef isn't easy; you must choose between meats labeled hamburger, ground chuck, ground round, ground sirloin and ground beef. Knowing the real difference among these ground beef products is a great help in finding the best buy.

According to New York State laws, ground beef labeled "hamburger" can contain no more than 30 per cent fat. If the meat ground for hamburger doesn't have a natural 30 per cent fat content, extra fat can be added.

Hamburger is often made by combining lean beef from lower grade meats with trimmings or fat cut from higher grades. This extra fat can be added up to the allowed 30 per cent—and no more. Hamburger may also contain added seasoning.

Meat labeled "ground beef" is pure beef. It cannot contain any added spices. It may contain a maximum of 30 per cent fat, but no extra fat from another cut may be added.

Ground beef products with 30 per cent fat, which are labeled as hamburger or ground beef, are good for Sloppy Joes, chili, spaghetti sauce and, of course, hamburgers. All of these products will benefit from the flavor of cooked fat. Because hamburger and ground beef have the highest fat content of ground beef products, they usually cost the least.

Meat labeled "ground chuck" or "ground round" means the beef comes from the chuck or round cut of the animal. New York State law says ground chuck must contain only beef from the primal chuck cut, including the fat that is actually attached to the meat. Extra fat may not be added.

Ground round is also prohibited from containing fat other than that attached to the meat. The meat used in ground round must come from the round cut of the beef. As a rule, ground round is the leanest type of ground beef available. To be sure you're purchasing lean ground round, select the cut you want from the case and have the butcher grind it for you.

Ground chuck is excellent for beef burgers, Salisbury steak or meat loaf. It usually has less fat and more lean meat than ground beef, and it will shrink less in cooking. Ground chuck has enough fat, though, for good flavor and juiciness. Ground round is generally good for low-calorie diets and special combination dinner dishes. Its high percentage of lean beef makes it more expensive than hamburger, ground beef and chuck. Because it is low in fat, ground round is often dry and tasteless in comparison with the others.

People often choose ground sirloin, beef made from the sirloin primal cut, for special recipes and deluxe hamburgers. Many consumers find ground chuck very similar to the more expensive ground sirloin. Before you spend extra money for sirloin, try ground chuck and see if it suits your purposes just as well.

It pays to shop around when buying ground beef products. One store may follow a policy of adding extra fat to hamburger, right up to the allowed 30 per cent limit. Another store might sell it with a considerably lower fat content.

A smart shopper and an informed consumer compares the fat content of the various types of ground beef products. Look for the intensity of the color. Higher levels of fat will lighten the color of fresh meat, while leaner meats will be a deeper red.

Know what you're getting when you purchase ground beef products and select those that are the best buy for you.

Pewter Booth Set For County Fair

NEW PALTZ—At the Ulster County fairgrounds this weekend is a booth displaying pewter casting techniques and pewter commemorative plates produced by Mountain Metals of 3 Dunn St., foot of Wilbur Avenue, Kingston.

Three types of hand-cast bicentennial plates will be on sale: one depicts the City Seal of Kingston; another the Ulster County Seal, and the last, scenes of Huguenot Street. The plates sell for $45, the money going towards the restoration of a 100-year-old firehouse in which Mountain Metals Crafts School is located.

Each seven inch plate is bordered with 13 stars and dates 1776-1976 on a ripple edge colonial pattern. Each plate design is numbered, signed, limited edition of 200, and the names of the purchasers will be registered with the Ulster County Historical Society which will receive Ulster County Plate No. 1.

The plates are hand cast in heavy colonial pewter using 200-year-old methods. A display of the various steps involved in the production of the plates will be exhibited.

DEAR ABBY

Couple Needs Parents' Help If Their Marriage Is to Survive

DEAR ABBY: My son David, 18 and Pam, his girlfriend, 16, came to us saying they wanted to marry because Pam was pregnant. We met with Pam's parents who agreed to the marriage, providing David could support Pam and the expected baby.

David tried to enlist in the Air Force but was told he needed the equivalent of a high school diploma (he had quit in his junior year), so he got some books from the library and studied for the exams he had to pass to get into the Air Force.

He passed the exams, and the kids were married at a little church wedding. David then went to Texas for his basic training. After one week, he was sent home with an honorable discharge. They said he was "unable to cope with military life."

This was a terrible blow to all of us. David and Pam are living with us now, but we can't keep them indefinitely. Pam's parents have been very good to the kids, but say they can't live with them. David has looked everywhere for work, but because he has no skills, he can't get a job. He is so discouraged. There is talk of their separating and Pam's going home to her parents.

There must be a solution, but what? If Pam leaves David, I don't think he could survive the blow. What should they do?—DESPERATE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Urge David to inquire into the nearest vocational-technical school where, in a relatively short time, he can acquire a compensable skill. If you and Pam's parents can assist for a year or two longer, perhaps the marriage can be saved. If the kids are willing to try, can't you?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman who has been in the business world for many years. I have been told that I "think" like a man.

Should a woman take that as a compliment?—THINKS LIKE A MAN

DEAR THINKS: Only if she thinks a man's "thinking" is superior to that of a woman's.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a policeman that he has rights just like any other man?

Abby, this policeman I'm in love with says that he loves me but he will never marry again (he's divorced) because he can't expect a woman to sit home worrying about whether he will make it home that night or not.

Abby, I realize that his work involves a lot of danger, but I'm sure I can handle all the problems connected with it.

A policeman needs a good woman to come home to after a hard day's work, and I want to be his woman, but he won't let me.

He wants to continue seeing me, but he tells me not to expect marriage because he loves me too much to marry me.

Does this make sense?—LOVES A COP

DEAR LOVES: I don't buy it. If it's marriage you want, don't waste any more time on him.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Medicaid Problems Have Gotten Worse

ALBANY (UPI) — Three years ago, New York City identified 300 so-called Medicaid mills that supplied welfare recipients with medical, dental or other professional treatment but only 37 were subjected to on-site inspections, according to a report by state auditors.

By the end of 1974, the number of facilities termed Medicaid mills had doubled, a report made public today by the Department of Audit and Control said.

A Medicaid mill was described in the report as "shared professional facilities in which three or more providers gave Medicaid services." The volume of claims filed by such facilities ranged from 10,000 to 40,000 patients each year.

The report, issued by Comptroller Arthur Levitt's press office, also said that nearly half of the city Health Department's professional reviewers — 47 out of 102 in 1973 — had themselves billed for care for Medicaid patients.

Levitt said this "indicated a high potential for conflict of interest."

City reviewers visited 33,000 dental patients whose bills exceeded $50 to come in for checkups to determine the quality of care they had received.

Of the 8,000 who reported for such checkups, the report said, about 16 per cent were found to have had unsatisfactory work and service for another 9 per cent was "incomplete or had never been provided."

For the last half of 1973, about one of every eight dentists "had three or more instances of unsatisfactory results registered upon reexamination."

COME TO CARROLS AND GO HOME HAPPY.

HENRY HAWK AND FOGHORN LEGHORN

Now when you come to Carrols, don't be surprised if you get the giggles. It seems to be a common reaction when people see one of the laminated cartoon placemats you can get with a Pepsi for just 49¢. After all, cartoon favorites the likes of Road Runner and Wiley, Tweety and Sylvester, and Bugs and Elmer all in colorful action do have a way of tickling your funny bone! So come to Carrols and collect all six happy mats—a different one every week. Because 49¢ is a mighty small price to pay for a regular size Pepsi and a cartoon happy mat.

Pomp for Rocky, But Little More

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Unless he has one more trick up his sleeve, don't look for Vice President Nelson Rockefeller to play a significant role or have much impact on the forthcoming Republican National Convention.

That's the word from several top ranked Republican politicians — who for obvious reasons ask not to be identified.

As vice president, New York's former governor will be given the pomp, circumstance and courtesy due his office. But, the insiders say, the display in Kansas City next week will be strictly for the office, not the man.

Rockefeller, the object of unyielding hatred by the extreme conservatives in the GOP stemming back to 1964 and the disaster that befell Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, has few real friends left anywhere in the party.

Reports from Washington indicate that the 68-year-old vice president, although still on personally good terms with President Ford, is cordially disliked by most of Ford's staff — and returns the feeling in spades.

As for supporters of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, they are mostly under the influence of Goldwater's strongest partisans from years gone by and they have never forgiven Rockefeller for an alleged lack of support in 1964.

One remembers the chilling picture as Rockefeller was nearly booed off the podium at the party's convention that year. Youthful Republicans supporting the Arizona senator stood frozen faced as the booing went on and on and on. It was a scene reminiscent of films of Hitler's Nuremberg rallies in the early 1930s.

Rockefeller's apparent bowing to the inevitable was signalled as early as April, when the state's convention delegates met and — according to state party chairman Richard Rosenbaum — committed 119 of its 154 votes to Ford.

Since then that number has varied slightly, now standing at 129 for Ford, 19 for Reagan and six still officially uncommitted.

The six, not so incidentally, are expected to go for Ford on the first ballot, and that would produce 135 first ballot votes for the President. With each delegate in the tight race between Ford and Reagan worth slightly more than his or her weight in gold, those six take on added importance.

And, if Rockefeller had decided early in the game that he had a chance to display some weight at the convention, just think how important it would be to go to Kansas City with between 130 and 135 uncommitted delegates.

The Ford and Reagan operatives would be falling all over themselves to find out what Rockefeller wanted.

As it is, that bargaining chip is gone with the wind. Further, Rosenbaum has made ostentatious efforts to add to Ford's support, pinning individual delegates down to specific commitments. That would hardly have happened if Rockefeller figured he was going to be a key figure at the convention.

Unless, of course, Rockefeller does have a final ace in the hole. If, for instance, about 40 of New York's delegation suddenly become "uncommitted" again, as they have every right to do, then the delegation could become a huge factor

Bridge Revenue Up

KINGSTON — Traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge increased by 5.73 per cent in July, 1976 over the same month last year.

Last month 272,658 vehicles crossed the bridge; 257,882 cars, buses, and trucks did so in July, 1975. Bridge revenue showed an increase of $2,869 or 4.24 per cent over the past year from $67,683 in July, 1975 to $70,552 in July, 1976.

Traffic and revenue were both up on all bridges operated by the New York State Bridge Authority. Overall, 2,344,028 vehicles used the five Hudson River crossings last month as compared to 2,272,956 in July, 1975.

Revenues on the five bridges increased 4.6 per cent from $661,755.45 last year to $692,187.55 this year.

The Mid-Hudson Bridge showed the smallest gain — traffic up .28 per cent to 574,836 and revenue up 2.41 per cent to $144,363.25.

Social Security Aid in Ulster

KINGSTON — Some $5 million in Social Security benefits is being paid to 25,484 county residents each month according to figures released by S.S. District Manager George J. Habernig. Beneficiaries include 14,892 retired workers, 3,355 survivors (widows, widowers or parents) of workers who have died and 1,645 disabled workers.

Habernig further states that 7,901 people under 65 and 17,583 people over 65 receive the benefits. Of that number 8,820 are men, 13,388 women and 3,276 children.

Woodstock Meeting

LAKE HILL — The Woodstock Township Taxpayers Association will meet Thursday, Aug. 19, in the Lake Hill Firehouse, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Harold Finkle, candidate for Ulster County Treasurer. The public is invited.

Chicago covers an area of 227 square miles on the southwest shore of Lake Michigan.

The highest rank in the U.S. Navy is that of fleet admiral.

Isle Royale, largest island in Lake Superior, is a National Park noted for its wilderness and wild life.

The Territory of the Virgin Islands sends one delegate to the U.S. House of Representatives who may vote in committee but not on the House floor.

HEART FUND GAINS

Results of last campaign show campaign results up

Results of the 1976 Heart Fund Campaign, recently received from state headquarters, show the Mid-Hudson Chapter of the American Heart Association has exceeded last year's income by 4.3 per cent.

Total receipts, exclusive of bequests, amounted to $104,318, Ulster County's share being almost $69,000. Mary Theresa Hinterberger, Miss New York State and Honorary State Heart Fund Chairman, presented a plaque to Harold E.

Finkle, chairman of the chapter's Heart Fund advisory committee. Other key leaders were Don Reis, County chairman, and Reg Lawlis, Kingston chairman. The Heart Fund president was Brendon D. Alexander.

Ulster towns which exceeded their goals were Denning, with Harold Van Aken as chairman; Esopus, Mrs. Joseph Silla; Hardenburgh, Bowman Owen; Town of Kingston, Faye Seche; Marletown, Mrs. Joan Walker; Olive, Judy Reeves; and Saugerties, Alan J. Roos. Kingston had the largest increase, $1,966 more than last year.

According to Reis, "except for IBM in-plant donations and a grant from the Klock Foundation, almost the entire amount was raised by our really fine door-to-door volunteers who made it possible for the Heart Association to conduct all the valuable services it performs, such as the recent coronary screening to detect possible victims of heart attack or stroke."

Bear Mountain Work

BEAR MOUNTAIN — The area surrounding the south dock and sea wall at the Bear Mountain riverfront will be closed to the public for reconstruction beginning Aug. 16.

Nash Castro, general manager of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, said the dock and sea wall have settled over the years and a major rehabilitation is required to prevent flooding of the area at high tide

Irate Consumers Session Slated

KINGSTON — The Irate Consumers of Ulster County has scheduled a public information session on supermarket food prices Monday, Aug. 16, 8 p.m. at the Heritage Savings Bank, Wall Street, Kingston.

Any consumers who have questions or complaints about food prices, repricing of merchandise on shelves, unit and item pricing or who wish to volunteer to check supermarkets for compliance with fair practice laws are urged to attend.

A representative of the Ulster County Consumer Information Service also will be present.

The 3D Construction of Yonkers is slated to complete the work by Dec. 15 at a cost of $113,437.

The operation of the excursion vessel "Dayliner," which uses the north dock, will not be affected by the construction, Castro said.

Terrorists Hit Airport; Javits Aide Is Killed

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Arab terrorists threw a bomb at passengers preparing to board an Israeli plane at Istanbul airport Wednesday night, then opened fire on them with pistols. Four persons were killed, including an aide to a U.S. senator.

The American was identified by the U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv as Harold Wallace Rosenthal, who was on a fact-finding tour to Israel for Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

There were conflicting reports as to the identity of the other victims and the number of attackers involved.

Turkish officials said two Israelis were among the victims, but the Israeli Foreign Ministry identified the dead as two guerrillas and one Japanese passenger, in addition to Rosenthal.

(A spokesman said Javits, who was in New York City, was "shocked" to learn of the shooting and had spoken with Rosenthal's family.)

Turkish police reportedly captured two of the terrorists, who were identified by Turkish sources in Tel Aviv as members of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — the group blamed for the June hijacking of an Air France jetliner forced to land in Uganda.

An airport security officer in Istanbul said the attack began when the guerrillas tossed a bomb at the passengers, then pulled pistols from their baggage and started shooting.

"The passengers came under fire just as they were descending from the stairs. That is why most of them got wounded in the head," said Dr. Mustafa Turkel, the physician on duty at the airport.

Turkish security guards returned the fire in a five-minute gunbattle, killing an assailant who had taken refuge in a duty-free shop.

Turkish officials said the guerrillas tried to take two policemen hostage during the shootout, but the officers escaped, forcing the terrorists to surrender almost immediately.

At least 25 persons were reported wounded in the attack,

Guerrilla in custody including two in serious condition. Hospital sources in Tel Aviv said seven wounded passengers flew on to Israel and stayed in Turkey.

The El Al Boeing 707 left for Tel Aviv with 82 persons aboard.

"We were all scared to death," said Mrs. Gilbert Rueff of El Paso, Tex., after the plane landed at Tel Aviv's Ben-Gurion airport. "We were very lucky to get out of it alive."

S. African Race Riots Flare Anew; Police Slay 14 Blacks Near Cape Town

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police shot and killed 14 black rioters Wednesday night in the first major outbreak of violence near Cape Town, 950 miles south of Johannesburg.

Two other blacks were reported killed as the worst racial fighting in South Africa in two months spread to other black communities.

A police spokesman confirmed 14 deaths in the townships of Langa and Gugulethu, outside Cape Town, but said the toll could be higher. Hospital sources said 15 blacks were killed and 50 injured.

The Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail said two blacks were shot and killed by police in black townships in the Transvaal province earlier Wednesday, bringing to 28 the unofficial death toll in a week of unrest.

In the Cape Town area rioting, police said heavily armed riot squads fired automatic weapons and tear gas into a rock and bottle-throwing crowd that refused to disperse.

At least 15 buildings were burned down, including schools, a library and two post offices, police said.

Screaming crowds of blacks also smashed car windows outside Langa and harassed morning commuters at railway stations.

In other violence, two black policemen were injured in Sabotage, near Vanderhylpark, 50 miles south of Johannesburg, when black youths stoned and attacked automobiles.

In Alexandra, a black suburb bordering Johannesburg's white northern suburbs, five blacks were wounded by police who fired at a group of about 40 blacks trying to set up a road block.

The shootings near Cape Town were the first major racial violence in that coastal area.

Most of the previous fighting has occurred in the Transvaal province, particularly in Soweto township, the heart of South Africa's militant black nationalism movement, 15 miles south of Johannesburg.

The black townships in the Cape are much smaller and less militant.

Parisians Will Look At Gotham

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paris, which is reforming its municipal government next year, will send a two-member delegation to New York next week to study American methods of administering a major city.

A City Hall spokesman said Wednesday the two French officials are scheduled to arrive next week for discussions with Mayor Abraham D. Beame, Budget Director Donald R. Kummerfeld and other city officials.

Francois Le Pine, head of the cabinet of the Department of Interior, and his assistant, Bertrand Chardon, plan to spend seven days in New York studying the form of government, the power of the mayor and the intricacies of New York City financing and policy-making.

A spokesman for the U.S. State Department said the two French officials also will travel to Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Washington.

Approximately 3,600,000,000 birth control pills are taken by American women each year.

State Soaking Speeders for Safety Clinics

ALBANY (UPI) — Motorists convicted of speeding or other traffic infractions will soon have to pay two or three times the regular fee to renew their licenses.

The program was officially announced Wednesday by the Department of Motor Vehicles but had been disclosed in a United Press International story six weeks ago. It will provide funding for the department's driver safety clinics and other safety programs.

The DMV was directed by the legislature to find a new source of funds for the programs this spring when $1.2 million was cut from the department's appropriation for driver improvement classes. The classes are required of motorists with two or more speeding arrests within 18 months.

Notice of the new surcharge will be mailed with license renewal applications for September.

Motorists with one or two convictions or bail forfeitures during the previous 36 months will pay double the regular $4 fee for a four-year license. Those with three or more convictions within 36 months will pay triple the regular fee.

A DMV spokesman estimated that 110,000 of the 720,000 drivers due to renew their licenses in September would be affected by the special assessment. Through the end of the year, about 379,000 persons would have to pay the higher fees.

Anticipating that the additional fees would cause a storm of protest, the department spokesman said the plan was selected from a number of alternatives.

"Those motorists who have forced additional departmental action ... through the recording of traffic convictions and bail forfeitures,

County at Odds With Pyrolysis Plan

NEW PALTZ — The Department of Environmental Conservation is planning a regional conference to discuss building a pyrolysis resource recovery plant for joint-county use — but they can probably count Ulster out.

DEC Regional Director Norman Van Valkenburgh says that his office is putting together a meeting within the next few weeks regarding state funding and regional use of a possible pyrolysis set-up in Dutchess County.

Ulster and Dutchess legislators have been talking about sharing the use and funding of such an operation.

But since those meetings late last spring it seems that local legislators have changed their minds about participation in the venture.

Chairman Peter J. Savago says that although he's always been willing to sit down and talk about the project he just doesn't feel that it is economical for the county to carry its garbage across the river for disposal.

"The big problem has always been transportation," he said. "It just isn't worth it...there isn't much sense going all that distance (to Dutchess County)."

Minority Leader Louis M. Klein echoed Savago's sentiments and added that, in his estimation, county legislators are leaning toward a regional landfill operation as an answer to the county's solid waste disposal problems.

Pyrolysis is a relatively new process of converting solid waste into re-usable energy by trapping escaping gases from the processing of the wastes in an oxygen free environment.

The Dutchess County legislature has been interested in the process for about three years, according to that county's assistant to the chairman, Joseph Fratelli.

"We originally had a commitment from the state for a $4.7 million grant which would have paid for about half the construction costs in 1972," he explained.

That cost figure has now jumped to $30 million and Dutchess is hoping to get the state to add another $12 million to their original grant to bring that commitment back up to the 50 per cent mark.

Dutchess is hoping that neighboring counties, like Ulster, will participate in the project either by coming in on the building costs or by signing a long term contract with them for use of the facilities.

Either way Dutchess could count on some outside money to help defray building and operating costs.

If no other county is willing to co-operate in the long-term proposal it may set Dutchess far behind its tentative 1980 date for operation of the facility.

The plant itself is expected to generate some revenue through the sale of the energy-producing gas which is a by-product of the disposal process.

Other Nations View American Revolution

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Washington, Jefferson and others made the revolution against Britain because of British oppression and exploitation of the Americans." This instruction of Chairman Mao best explains the causes of the war for American independence.

This excerpt from a textbook used by high school students in the People's Republic of China is included in a special Bicentennial volume of selections from the history books of 13 nations prepared by the U.S. Office of Education.

"Even had the British won the war in America the political problem would have remained acute," concludes a chapter titled "The End of an Empire, 1775-1783, in a textbook used in Great Britain.

"A settlement on British terms would have left unsatisfied deep-seated American aspirations, further sharpened as these would have been by the struggle," says the British textbook.

"And even if the situation could have been kept under control for the time being, for how long would this have been possible?"

Each selection in the 119-page book examines causes of the conflict, some with illustrations like the map with Chinese descriptions of the 13 states at the time of the Declaration of Independence. All are described as "examples of how current textbooks in other nations view the American revolution."

with American perceptions.

"This is probably because of the fairly widespread consensus among historians on many of the facts and interpretations concerning the American revolution."

French students are being told in their history books that the English government "took several measures that greatly angered the American colonists" leading to a rebellion that "was very popular in France."

George Washington is described in an Argentine textbook as "a man of singular intellectual and moral qualities. Courageous, industrious, prudent and firm, he quickly gained great authority among his compatriots, who recognized him as the indisputable leader."

In Ghana, students are taught that the American revolution was "the first time in modern times that a colony ruled from outside had rejected foreign rule and formed a nation of its own."

Not all Americans backed the revolution, says the textbook from Japan. Government officials, large landowners and wealthy merchants remained loyal to the king and many others were neutral.

The longest selection, from the People's Republic of China, examines social conditions in the colonies, the Boston tea party, the battle of Lexington, the "stirring days" of the second Continental Congress in Philadelphia, other steps to independence, and the revolution's historical significance.

"The American people are a great people," the Chinese chapter concludes.

"They have a revolutionary tradition. At present, they are in a state of new awakening. We believe that the American people will make still greater contributions to the cause of human progress in the future."

In a foreword the Office of Education raises a question "about the other side of the coin — how adequately do American textbooks and other educational materials represent key events or periods in the history of other nations?"

The answer provided is that there is "much room for initiative here by enterprising scholars and publishers."

The volume, titled "The American Revolution — Selections from Secondary School History Books of Other Nations" — is available from the U.S. Government Printing Office at $2.25 a copy.

Olive Councilman Resigns

SHOKAN — Councilman Herbert Wells has resigned from the Olive Town Board.

Wells, a member of the town's governing body for 14 years, has been transferred by his employer. The board at its recent meeting voted to leave the position vacant until it can be filled at the November election.

Councilman Peter Tosi Jr. registered his opposition to a takeover of all social services costs by the county as proposed by Ulster County Legislator William West. Tosi said it would have cost town residents $35,000 as their share if the county had taken over welfare costs last year while under the present program, where towns pay for their own home relief, cost is only $5,000. Tosi said that in light of these figures it would be foolhardy for Olive to support a county takeover and noted that Olive pays the fourth highest taxes to the county treasury of all the towns.

Councilman Donald Beesmer noted that the Department of Transportation had acceded to town requests and will lower the Olivebridge speed limit to 35 miles an hour and will post a lower speed limit on Route 28 in Ashokan and Shokan. Beesmer said approval had been granted for school bus stop signs on Route 28 once the Onteora school district makes formal application for them.

Tosi said 500 persons had registered for the summer recreation program, but that average daily attendance was only 197, down from last year's figure. The recreation commission will look into the reasons for the lower attendance.

Tosi also said action has been taken to prevent non-residents from using the town tennis courts. A sign has been installed at the park entrance restricting use to town residents and a sign-up sheet will be used for the tennis courts.

The board named Robert Steen to a five year term on the zoning board, where he has been a member for the past year.

In other action, Supervisor Vincent Barringer said the senior citizens had purchased new tablecloths for the Veterans' Hall in Shokan; named Aug. 28 to be Olive Conservation Day; and reported that the town should begin investigating possible landfill sites, since the present one only has a life expectancy of eight to 10 years.

The excerpts roughly cover the outset of war in 1775 to the peace treaty of 1783 and represent books widely used in the countries of origin: Argentina, Canada, People's Republic of China, Egypt, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Ghana, Great Britain, India, Israel, Japan, Mexico and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Nine selections were translated into English.

The Office of Education explains that "the similarities (in the accounts) far outweigh the differences when compared

A Fight to the Finish For Giants and Jets

NEW YORK (UPI) — It may be just an exhibition game but it's one they play like a Super Bowl.

The New York Giants and the New York Jets staged a finish Wednesday night that might have National Football League officials wishing it could happen in the championship game.

George Hunt's third field goal from 34 yards with just 16 seconds left lifted the Giants over the Jets 16-14 as pro football returned to Yankee Stadium after a three-year absence.

Hunt's dramatic kick came after the Jets had taken a 14-13 lead with just 2:12 to go when rookie halfback Louie Giammona caught a deflected sevenyard touchdown pass from Joe Namath and Pat Leahy added the tie-breaking conversion.

The win evened the Giants' pre-season record at 1-1 while the Jets fell to 0-2.

Both clubs played front line players almost the entire game despite the fact that the Jets must play host to Oakland Friday night and the Giants must fly to Houston Friday for a Saturday game against the Oilers.

"We really wanted to win this one," said Jets fullback Ed Marinaro, who turned in the best all-around performance of his five-year career. "We wanted to do everything we had to do to win this one. If it meant playing the first string all the way, we were prepared to do it."

Jet quarterback Joe Namath went the whole way, adding a 21-yard TD pass to Jerome Barkum in the first period, and Craig Morton played all but one series for the Giants and was masterful at the end to set up Hunt's winning kick.

But the hero was Hunt, the third-year man from Tennessee who had to fight off four challengers to keep his job this year.

"I thought I hit every kick just perfect," said Hunt, who also hit from 23 and 37 yards after Larry Csonka's one-yard TD in the second period tied the game 7-7.

Staubach, Longley Dismiss Training Camp Battle

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — The great Roger Staubach-Clint Longley brawl the other day certainly wasn't much as fisticuffs go but it likely will turn out to be the showdown most remembered from the Dallas Cowboys' preseason workouts.

By all accounts, the confrontation Tuesday between the two Cowboy quarterbacks lasted only a moment.

Backfield coach Danny Reeves broke up things before they went too far and now all parties concerned say it was just one of those things and everybody is buddy-buddy again.

"It was no big deal," said Staubach, the veteran who has been involved in some strange occurrences in the last year.

"It was just a new form of conditioning," suggested Longley, who is battling newcomer Danny White for the backup spot behind Staubach.

"I never even inquired what happened," said Coach Tom Landry. "As long as it stays on the field, I don't worry about it."

The brief incident occurred after Staubach bobbled a snap on a play in which he was to throw a long pass to Drew Pearson. Longley, standing nearby and holding a football, threw a pass instead toward Pearson but the flanker had eased up and ball sailed over his head.

Longley apparently made a comment concerning Pearson and Staubach said something snappy back to Longley. Longley said something back and before long, the two players had walked behind a dugout at a nearby baseball field and began swinging at each other.

Reeves quickly interceded.

A training camp fight is hardly unusual but it is unlike the normally calm Staubach to be involved in one.

But during the past year, Staubach has taken part in such publicity stunts as riding a camel and driving in a demolition derby. And once, when he was unable to reach General Manager Tex Schramm on the telephone at Cowboy headquarters in Dallas, Staubach walked out on an 11th floor ledge and knocked on Schramm's window to get his attention.

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) — The New England Patriots practiced today at Bryant College in preparation for their Sunday game with the Green Bay Packers.

The Pats spent the early part of the week indoors studying pass coverage. Pats limited outdoor work.

County Tennis Tourney Begins Friday

KINGSTON—A field of 100 players, has entered the Ulster County Tennis Championships which begins play Friday at Forsyth Park and Myron J. Michael School with the first matches in the women's singles division.

In all, six divisions will be contested: women's singles, women's doubles, men's singles, men's doubles, mixed doubles and senior men's doubles. The men's events begin Monday.

Finals for the women's events are scheduled for Aug. 21-22. The men's finals and mixed doubles finals will be Aug. 28-29.

Bill Zehe, teaching professional at the Ulster Racquet Club, returns to defend

In the senior men's doubles, Dick Smith and Dick Little are the No. 1 seeds, George Martin and Marshall Lipton are No. 2, Belmont Towbin and Bernard Needle are No. 3 and C.J. Farley and Joe Hevesi are No. 4.

The public is invited to watch all the matches. There is no admission charge.

Doyle Exceeds His Expectations

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — New York Yankee pitcher Doyle Alexander expected to have a short night Wednesday.

He was scheduled to start against the Kansas City Royals but things didn't look good. While he was warming up in the bullpen, Alexander felt like he was throwing the ball hard but without control.

His shakiness was obvious in the first inning as Kansas City's Tom Poquette began with a single and Amos Otis followed with a home run. Then George Brett, hitless in 12 straight at bats, tripled. One out later, Hal McRae singled in Brett but McRae was thrown out when he rounded first base too far.

But then Alexander settled down, giving up only four more hits until he was relieved with two out in the bottom of the ninth as he pitched the Yankees to a 5-3 win over the Royals in the final regular season meeting of the two American League leaders.

"I know I came very close to coming out early in the game," said Alexander. "In the first inning I was overthrowing the ball. When I was warming up I was just hoping I could keep the ball in the bullpen. Then I decided I was going to throw half speed and make good pitches. I had nothing to lose, did I?"

But he did gain his seventh win against eight defeats as the Yankees, behind Fred Stanley's two-run triple and a throwing error by John Mayberry on a potential double play, scored five runs in the second.

It was lucky for the Yankees that they got the runs they did. Former Yankee Larry Gura came on in relief of starter Doug Bird with one out in the second and gave up only one hit and one walk in gaining some revenge against New York Manager Billy Martin.

"I have no feeling for him except I feel sorry sometimes," Gura said of Martin. "I had a promising career with the Yankees before he came over. During the time I was with them, I had a 12-9 record and a 2.90 earned run average and then he came over and didn't let me pitch one inning. He didn't even let me warm up in five weeks."

Fidrych is Proving He Can Do Anything

By UPI

People in Detroit feel Mark "The Bird" Fidrych can do anything ... and darn if he isn't trying to prove them right.

Fidrych, who was not even on Detroit's 40-man roster at spring training and spent his first month in the majors on bullpen duty, has the rare opportunity to pull a pitching quadruple in his rookie year.

With 7½ weeks left in the season, Fidrych is just seven victories away from becoming the first American League rookie 20-game winner since 1954; he is the front running candidate for the Rookie of the Year honors; his 1.97 earned run average is tops in the league; and, believe it or not, the Bird is probably the only pitcher standing in the way of Jim Palmer's bid for a second consecutive Cy Young Award.

Fidrych, who was the starting pitcher for the American League at the All Star game July, raised his record to 13-4 Wednesday night when Willie Horton pinch-hit a home run in the ninth inning to give Detroit a 4-3 win over the Texas Rangers.

No rookie has ever won the Cy Young Award but then no rookie has had the fanfare Fidrych has been accorded. Since beating the New York Yankees June 28 in a nationally televised game, Fidrych has not pitched before less than 30,000 people at home or on the road. The smallest crowd was 30,425 at Minnesota, and that was the Twins' biggest turnout of the season.

He has averaged 35,575 in his 11 home starts but since his national television debut, he has averaged 44,545 an appearance. When he doesn't pitch, the Tigers draw only about 17,000.

The last time an AL rookie won 20 games was in 1954 when Bob Grim went 20-8 for the New York Yankees. Fidrych will have 11 or 12 starts to collect those seven victories separating him from 20 but Detroit Manager Ralph Houk says he will not pitch him on three days rest to hasten that 20.

"I'm just doing what I think is right for him," said Houk. "It's not when or where he pitches that's important. You couldn't pitch any 21-year-old every fourth day. I'm not going to exploit or ruin any good young pitcher."

Horton's homer handed Gaylord Perry his ninth loss against 11 victories. Rusty Staub drove in two earlier Detroit runs with a single and a home run while Mike Hargrove slugged a solo homer for Texas.

In other games, Cleveland defeated Chicago 4-3, Minnesota blanked Baltimore 2-0, California blasted Boston 6-0 and Oakland drubbed Milwaukee 8-5.

Indians 4, White Sox 3

Rick Manning singled home Duane Kuiper from second base with the winning run in the 10th inning to give Cleveland a sweep of the two game series. The Indians' Tommy Smith hit his first major league homer since 1973 in the fifth.

Twins 2, Orioles 0

Dan Ford knocked in the only runs of the game with a second inning sacrifice fly and fourth inning single to support the five-hit pitching of Bill Singer as Minnesota beat Baltimore for the sixth time in eight meetings.

Angels 6, Red Sox 0

Frank Tanana tossed a twohitter, struck out 10 and notched an AL high 18th complete game to carry California out of the West Division cellar. Tanana recorded his second shutout and increased his strikeout total to 177, second best in the league behind teammate Nolan Ryan.

A's 8, Brewers 5

Home runs by Don Baylor and Ken McMullen and the ninth-inning relief of Rolie Fingers enabled Mike Torrez to win his 10th game and Oakland to take its fifth straight. Torrez' second straight victory raised his record to 10-10 and moved the A's to within 8½ games of first-place Kansas City in AL West.

Vail, Fuentes Brawl

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tito Fuentes really did have a reason to be mad at Mike Vail, but at the time, he probably didn't know it.

With one out and the basesloaded in the first inning of Wednesday night's game between the New York Mets and San Diego Padres, Vail doubled down the left field foul line to drive home both runs in a 2-1 New York victory.

But upon trotting into second standing up, Vail suddenly found himself challenged to a fight by Fuentes, the Padres' second baseman. Seconds later, they were engaged in some lively fisticuffs which were subsequently broken up by quick-reacting umpire, Tom Gorman.

"He (Fuentes) was saying something to me but it was in Spanish and I couldn't understand him," said Vail. "He tried to push me off the base and then hit me with the ball. I wasn't expecting any kind of altercation and he got a couple of punches in before I could react."

"There's been no animosity between us in the past, it was just something that happens in a ballgame."

Oddly enough, Vail's double turned out to be the deciding hit in the game as Jon Matlack and Skip Lockwood combined to tame the Padres on seven hits and one run. Matlack, 12-5, went seven innings, while Lockwood registered his 13th save, striking out three, including Willie McCovey with the bases-loaded and two out in the eighth.

Before Vail's double, the Mets had loaded the bases in the first when Bruce Boicclair and John Milner walked and Joe Torre was hit by a pitch.

The only Padres run came off Matlack in the fifth when Fred Kendall singled, moved up on an infield ground out and scored on a bloop single by Enzo Hernandez.

When Things Are Wrong, They Turn Out Right

By UPI

The Philadelphia Phillies "know" they're winners in the National League East this year because even when things are going wrong, they turn out right.

The Phils have enough walking wounded players to start a hospital of their own but ballooned their lead to 14½ games Wednesday night—their biggest lead of the season—when they defeated the Atlanta Braves 4-1.

"We haven't been playing that well," said reserve catcher Johnny Oates, who contributed an RBI single and two excellent throws while filling in for Bob Boone in the victory. "It seems that everybody is doing his part. We're doing the kind of things that win pennants."

The Phillies have surprised their rivals with two things—a powerful relief pitching corps and a strong bench. They used both in the triumph over the Braves, with Ron Schueler and Ron Reed contributing strong relief efforts and Oates, Tommy Hutton and Tony Taylor making key hits.

Third baseman Jerry Royster's two throwing errors and Hutton's single accounted for two unearned runs in the fifth inning which broke a 1-1 tie and sent the Phils on their way to victory. Oates drove in a run with a single and Taylor had a pinch single.

Tom Underwood went 5 2-3 innings to raise his record to 73 with Schueler and Reed firing hitless relief for the last 3 1-3 innings.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 0

Rick Rhoden pitched a fivehitter, raising his record to 10-1 for Los Angeles, as the Pirates fell another full game behind Philadelphia. Ron Cey homered and Bill Buckner singled in the other run for the Dodgers, who dealt John Demery his fourth loss against six wins.

Reds 13, Cubs 10

Dave Concepcion's single and Doug Flynn's triple capped a three-run ninth-inning outburst which brought the Reds their victory at the Wrigley Field shooting gallery. Tony Perez, Johnny Bench and Ken Griffey had homers for Cincinnati while Jose Cardenal connected for the Cubs.

Expos 9, Giants 3

Gary Carter, Larry Parrish and Tim Lincecum in two runs each and Woody Fryman pitched a nine-hitter for his 10th victory for Montreal. Fryman, pitching without pain in his left elbow for the first time in about five years, struck out two and walked two. Marty Perez and Gary Matthews had two hits each for the Giants.

Astros 8, Cards 1

Bob Watson had three singles and drove in two runs and Wilbur Howard added a runcoring triple to the Astros' attack which enabled Larry Dierker to win his 12th game compared to 10 losses. John Denny was the loser.

Can Dr. Richards Compete as Woman At Forest Hills?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Is Dr. Renee Richards enough of a lady to compete in women's tennis matches at the U.S. Open at Forest Hills?

Her on-court behavior doesn't concern U.S. Tennis Association officials. She hasn't been accused of being a female Ilie Nastase.

Rather, what bothers tournament officials is that—until last year—she resembled Nastase, and Jimmy Connors, and Arthur Ashe and the rest in another respect—she was a man.

Specifically, she was Dr. Richard Raskind, and ranked sixth nationally among junior veteran males before undergoing a sex-change operation.

USTA officials met Wednesday on the case of the 40-year-old Dr. Richards, a Newport Beach, Calif., ophthalmologist, and said they would make a decision by Aug. 20—eight days before the start of the prestigious tournament.

George Gowen, USTA general counsel, said it was "very likely" they would require the leggy, 6-foot-2 Richards to undergo a karotype test, which would show whether her chromosomes were male (XY) or female (XX).

Doctors say a sex-change operation does not change the chromosomes. USTA Vice President W.E. Hester said it would be "damn near impossible" for Richards to pass.

"I knew Raskind when he was a male and he was one hell of a player," Hester said from his home in Jackson, Miss. "He (she) still has a man's muscles and that's going to give him (her) a great advantage in quickness and how hard he (she) can hit the ball."

Last month, Dr. Richards beat 20-year-old Robin Harris in the women's singles competition at La Jolla, Calif.

"You can only play with what you're born with," Hester said. "It'll be damn near impossible for Raskind to change what he is."

Dr. Richards was not available for comment, but she had her defenders in the tennis world.

Gene Scott, director of the $60,000 Tennis Week Open in South Orange, N.J., Aug. 21-29, said he has already accepted her entry to play in the event.

"I accepted her on the basis of a gynecological affirmation that she is woman," said Scott, formerly a top-ranked men's player. "The phenotype test is what I used, consisting of physical tests—hormone levels, breast development, facial hair, etc."

Scott said personality was a big factor in allowing her to play. "He was a sensational guy, a sensitive, good, sports person," Scott said. "I don't feel that has changed with the sex change. He was terrific and I assume she is terrific too."

He and the other player are the only first-string candidates to survive the wholesale dismissal of cadets. The Kingston Colonials bowed to Home, 7-1, in Canadian American Baseball League action. # Zeesh-Davis Win At Redwood Nets

MIDDLETOWN—Ulster Racquet Club tennis pro Bill Zeesh teamed up with Bob Davis, professional at the Americana Tennis Club in Fishkill, to sweep through the USLTA sanctioned doubles championships at Redwood Club recently.

The Davis-Zeesh team won the final against the strong duo in straight but tough sets, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3.

The Zeesh-Davis duo took the final behind a power game—strong serves and volleying. A consistent percentage of first serves allowed the team to come to net and dominate.

Zeesh and Davis had their most trouble in the first set where they had to come from behind to edge the Middletown locals, the Lakes, 7-5. The rest of the match was far from easy, but Zeesh and Davis never let up and their persistence paid off.

No Grand Slam Bid in This PGA Event

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — The excitement of a big name going for golf's grand slam is missing from the 58th PGA Championship, but both Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd are rested and eager to add a second major 1976 title to their portfolios.

Pate, who took both the U.S. and Canadian Opens, and Floyd, the Masters winner, are challenged by the usual cast in the four-day event, which begins today at Congressional Country Club. Only British Open winner Johnny Miller, who fell off his motorbike and ripped open his right hand, is missing.

The 7,054-yard, par 70 course is uphill and demanding, and predicted temperatures in the low 90s with high humidity could test the stamina of even the fittest golfers.

"I don't know how you can design a golf course so every hole is uphill but two," said the 22-year-old Pate, who added he will score well if he can get the feel of Congressional's greens, softened by early week rain but getting harder by the day.

"At home (Florida), I spent two weeks playing on slow Bermuda greens, but here the greens are slick and fast."

Pate also said he's solved some concentration problems caused by attention he got after the U.S. Open.

"I made up my mind in Canada that I wasn't going to worry about press interviews and that kind of stuff," he said. "My mind's on golf this week. I know I can win now."

Floyd, also coming off two weeks of rest, shot one-underpar 69s in consecutive practice rounds.

"I'm 20 yards further than I was two weeks ago," he said Wednesday. "It's just like a race horse, you can't run him all the time."

"I just wish the tournament had started today. I feel fresh and confident I'll win. I could feel it in the Masters six months ahead."

Jack Nicklaus, who has finished one-two-one in his last three PGA outings, leading money winner Ben Crenshaw, Hubert Green, Hale Irwin and Al Geiberger are other contenders. About the only players counted out are a batch of club pros and sentimental favorite Arnold Palmer, who admitted he doesn't have that everyday "desire" for the game anymore.

"It's something that Jerry Pate has. Call it cockiness if you want, it's something that is necessary to win. This morning, I have it. But it doesn't stay with me constantly. It's with him all the time," said Palmer, a month shy of his 47th birthday.

Crenshaw, a baby-faced 24-year-old who has won $213,201 so far this year, said he isn't overly pleased with his game—and that he would feel he's "stealing" the title if he wins.

"If I drive the ball well, I will probably be a contender," he said. "The key to this course is driving the ball."

Playing his third PGA, Crenshaw said he thinks the established players have an advantage because they've faced pressure before.

"A large number of players have the ability to win, but it's what's upstairs that counts," he said. "The people who have been there before have an edge. A lot of guys who win one big tournament are more likely to win again."

Buddy Allin, who won the Pleasant Valley Classic two weeks ago, predicted that Geiberger, the 1966 PGA winner, would win again.

"Allen's the best two and three iron player out here," he said. "And he can hit the fairway woods straight, too. He can keep the ball in the fairway. A perfect player for the course."

The tournament concludes Sunday afternoon, with a 18-hole playoff scheduled for Monday, if necessary.

Crenshaw Isn't Ready

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — A lot of people like Ben Crenshaw's chances to win the PGA Championship this week-end for one basic reason:

He's the leading money winner on the pro golf tour, so he must be ready to win his first major title...right?

Wrong.

Among those who don't expect Ben Crenshaw to win the PGA Championship is Crenshaw himself, and what's interesting is that he says "I don't deserve to win a major championship."

"If I did win one, I'd feel like I was stealing it," he says.

Crenshaw does not mean to imply that his golf game is not good enough. Hardly. It has been good enough to win two tournaments on the tour this year, produce three runnerup finishes, a total of a dozen in the top ten, and earn him $213,201.

It's just that major championships like the PGA require something special.

And Crenshaw knows he has not put in the preparation, the endless hours of practice, the sessions that produce blisters, that fine-tune game necessary for a "major."

His game is held together loosely. As he says, "I'm not repeating my swing very much, and when I do, it doesn't last very long. There haven't been too many times this year when I've hit the ball well."

The result is that Crenshaw, a 24-year-old whose swing once was considered classic, has been forced to become a scrambler, and you don't often win major championships by scrambling.

"I just don't hit enough fairways and enough greens," he says.

What all of this means, of course, is that despite his success this year, Crenshaw does not think he's quite ready yet to join Jack Nicklaus on the pedestal as the game's greatest player.

"I just don't have it yet," Crenshaw says. "It's still in the future for me."

An Unexpected Dunking For Gary Player

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — Gary Player got an unexpected dunking Wednesday after finishing his final practice round for the PGA Championship when he fell into a water hazard while signing autographs.

Player was walking alongside the water on his way from the 18th green to the clubhouse when he was joined by a big group of youngsters, all pushing pens and paper in his direction.

"Be careful," Player said. "I'll fall in."

That is exactly what happened.

As the kids thrust their pens at him, Player lost his footing. He grabbed the gallery rope, but still slid into the water. He got wet up to his waist, but afterward, taking out his soaked golf glove to show to a reporter, was able to laugh about the incident.

"I'm honored, really, that they want my autograph," he said.

Connors Debuts With Victory

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Jimmy Connors battled Australian Colin Dibley into submission Wednesday night in his opening match in the $157,000 National Clay Courts Tennis Championships when the 31-year-old challenger was unable to continue because of leg cramps.

Connors' victory keyed the charge by all the top-rated men's players Wednesday through the third day of play, but only five of the seeded women survived for the quarterfinals of their upset-palgued field.

Dibley, who kept Connors off stride through the first two sets with his high-powered serve, retired when trailing in the third set, 3-0. Connors won the opener, 6-4, but lost the second, 7-6 on a 9-7 tie-breaker.

Dibley said he hated to forfeit "because it takes a little of the glory away from Jimmy."

He added that he was hospitalized at Louisville after a match with cramps and felt he should retire rather than suffer a similar condition.

"I was quite happy about the way I was playing," he said. "I was playing very well."

No. 1-seeded Lesley Hunt of Australia whipped American Barbara Jordan, 6-3, 6-0, to remain along with South Africa's Linky Boshoff and Germany's Helga Masthoff as the only quarterfinalists among the first eight ranked women shooting for the $6,000 first prize.

One of the women's losers was Hunt's countrywoman, Cynthia Doerner who was seeded second.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, Manuel Orantes of Spain and Raul Ramirez of Mexico—seeded in that order behind Connors—needed about one hour each to dump their opponents during their second-round matches.

Vilas beat two-time champ Cliff Richey, 6-1, 6-2, while Orantes came back from a 4-2 deficit in the first set to win eight of his last nine games for a 7-5, 6-0 victory. Ramirez eased past Pat Cramer of South Africa, 6-2, 6-1.

In other late men's matches, No. 6 Harold Solomon beat Alvaro Bentancur, Colombia, 6-0, 6-2; No. 7 Jaime Fillol, Chile, stopped Victor Pecci, Paraguay, 6-1, 6-7, 6-4; and eighthseeded Brian Gottfried ousted Mike Cahill, Wilmington, Del., 6-4, 6-4.

In women's singles, Laura DuPont ousted Doerner, 6-4, 6-2 in one of the day's surprises. No. 4 Boshoff earned the quarters with a challenging 6-3, 7-5 decision against Janice Metcalf, Claremont, Calif. Fifth-seeded Marcie Louie retired after losing the first set to Kathy May, Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-1, and Fiorella Boncello, Uruguay, eliminated No. 7 Kathy Kuykendall, Miami, 6-2, 6-4.

No. 8 Masthoff gained the third round with a 6-1, 6-1 rout of Florence Guedy of France.

Ali Goes Into Seclusion

BERRIEN SPRINGS (UPI) — When Muhammad Ali is training for a "serious" fight, he apparently needs peace and quiet—but his fans won't allow that.

Reportedly upset by crowds "bugging him," Ali left his sprawling southwestern Michigan farm Tuesday and went into seclusion somewhere in the Arizona desert to train for his Sept. 28 fight against Ken Norton.

"He's in the desert somewhere in Arizona where he's going to run for two weeks to beat his body into shape," said Tom Joyner, a press aide at Ali's 80-acre farm and training camp near Berrien Springs, about 60 miles northeast of Chicago.

He said Ali and a close circle of associates quietly packed and left the camp where he had been training for the past four weeks for the bout in Yankee Stadium.

"He's in seclusion and he's not talking to anyone for two weeks," Joyner said. "You might say he's taken a vow of silence. He's serious about the Norton fight."

Other Ali staff members said the camp was upset over the crowds of gawkers who gathered daily at the riverfront estate to get a glimpse of the heavyweight boxing champion.

"The champ said people up here bother him too much," said Henry Greer, a staff cook. "There are too many people coming around all the time, buggering him."

"They come around before training, during training, after training, late at night, early in the morning. They were breaking his concentration, you know? The man can't even sit down at the dinner table without people coming around."

Joyner said Ali plans to run in the desert for two weeks in hopes of trimming down from his current 230 pounds to a 218 fighting weight.

U.S. Embassy Rejects Monzon's Visa Request

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — World middleweight boxing Carlos Monzon was forced to cancel his planned trip to the United States Wednesday when the U.S. Embassy rejected his request for a visa.

An embassy spokesman said the visa was denied Monzon because the boxer has been sentenced to 18 months in jail for slugging a photographer in 1967.

Lauda is Talking About Ending His Career

LUDWIGSHAFEN, West Germany (UPI) — World champion racing driver Niki Lauda said in an interview published Wednesday in the newspaper Die Welt that he does not know if he will compete again after he recovers from injuries received in the German Grand Prix.

"I am happy that I am alive," he said. "The important thing now is regaining my health. I don't know if I will race again. I have to put this thing behind me, think about everything, train, and then I will know what my future will be."

Jr. Driving Test At Monticello

MONTICELLO—Eight boys and girls, 14 to 19, will drive a field of pacers in Monticello Raceway's leg of the North American Junior Driving Championship Tuesday night, August 24, hoping to qualify for the national finals and $4,000 in cash or college scholarships.

The competition, the first step in what is hoped will become a national 4-H program of junior harness racing horsemanship, is being sponsored jointly by The Harness Tracks of America, the trade association of 49 major tracks in the U.S. and Canada, and the Harry M. Stevens catering company.

With the cooperation of local horsemen who are providing pacers for the race, Monticello's field will include eight evenly matched pacers.

Robert Cameron Houghton, Danny Cappello Jr. and Gina Arone are the youngsters of horsemen in harness racing. All of the entrants must have worked around harness horses for at least one year and hold a matinee-amateur or higher license from the United States Trotting Association.

Eight other HTA tracks have scheduled legs of the tournament, with the winning driver in each moving on to the championship final, to be raced at an HTA track in September.

Other junior competitions are being contested at Brandywine Raceway, Wilmington, Del.; Freehold, N.J. Raceway; Hazel Park Harness Raceway, Detroit; Northfield Park, Cleveland; Saratoga Harness; Scioto Downs, Columbus, Ohio; and Sportsman's Park, Chicago. First prize in the final is $2,500 in the form of a college scholarship or cash. Second prize is $1,000 and third prize is $500.

Stone Dock Invitational Set

NEW PALTZ—Ulster County swimmers will host the fourth annual Stone Dock Invitational Championships Friday through Sunday at the Elting Gymnasium Pool on the New Paltz State campus.

The Stone Dock Invitational has grown in both quality and quantity each of its four years. It has attracted some of the best age-group swimmers in the country. Last year nine Elting Gym pool records were shattered by the youngsters. Many of the standards previously set in high school sectional championships and S.U.N.Y. Athletic Conference championships were also rewritten.

A total of 18 swim clubs with 201 swimmers are entered in the meet. Of these, 180 hail from New York State, 19 from Connecticut and two from Massachusetts.

Among the top clubs to compete will be the Three Village Swim Club, the Hamden Rec Swim Club, Monroe-Woodbury Swim Club, State University of New York at Albany, Saratoga YMCA, Hauppauge A.A. and the Ulster County Swim Club.

Other clubs competing will be: Delmar Dolphins, Dutchess County YMCA and YMCA, Marlboro Mante Rays and West Point.

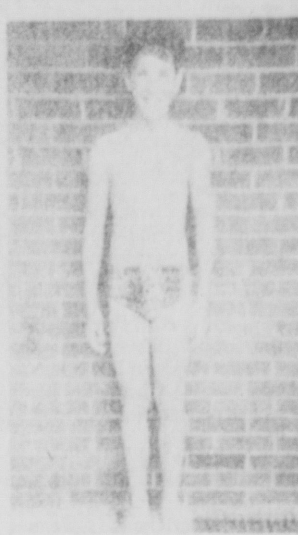

Three top swimmers to watch will be Mark James from Three Village and the University of Wisconsin, Stephen Auburn, an All-American from Potsdam State, and Mark Leger, who was a second place finisher in NCAA Division III competition.

Most of the top local talent will be swimming for the Ulster County Swim Club. Potential first place finishers for the club are Barb Buck, Donna Durkin, Kathy Sheren, Steve Punt and Rex Herman. Another potential local winner is Anthony Pagano from Marlboro Swim Club.

The schedule for the meet is as follows: Friday, 4:30 p.m., distance events; Saturday and Sunday, 8:30 a.m. preliminaries, 5 p.m. finals.

Storms Hit Wide Areas As Eastern Rivers Recede

(By UPI)

Thunderstorms swirled across the midlands Tuesday night, packing heavy rains, hail and high winds, while eastern rivers receded as the effects of Hurricane Belle subsided.

Severe thunderstorms moved through portions of Missouri and Kansas.

Whirls of up to 50 miles per hour were reported at both St. Joseph, Mo., and Emporia, Kan.

Trees and some power lines were damaged in St. Joseph and Maize, Mo., and in Emporia, Kan., and in Burlington, Kan.

Golfball-sized hail pelted Turkey, Mo.

Other storms stretched across Oklahoma and Iowa into Minnesota and Wisconsin and severe thunderstorm watches were in effect in a wide area, including portions of Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Minor flooding was reported in Texas on parts of the Neches River. The Rio Grande continued to stand just below bankful from Rio Grande City to Brownsville.

A tornado was reported west of Glidden, Iowa, Wednesday afternoon, uprooting trees and destroying two barns.

Half-inch hail pinged the Duluth area, accompanied by strong winds and heavy rains.

Other showers and thunderstorms spread over North Dakota and the High Plains of Colorado and Wyoming.

Rain also dampened the eastern Gulf Coast stretching inland over Florida and into Georgia and into North Carolina.

Scattered showers dotted the Rockies and spread into Utah, northern Nevada and portions of California.

Hot weather baked the heat-weary Central and Southern Plains and drought conditions worsened in the areas. Concordia, Kan., reported 104-degree heat Wednesday and Russell, Kan., reported a 103.

It was 105 at Wichita Falls, Tex., and 103 at Hobart, Okla.

Many rivers in New England and the Northeast, flowing out of their banks from hurricane Belle's heavy rains, created Wednesday and were falling today.

Atlantic coastal residents in three states were busy cleaning up the damage and debris left by Belle.

Vermont officials estimated damage from the storm at $12 million and Long Island officials said they had received about $9 million damage. Estimates were not available from Connecticut, but it was reported the state's apple crop suffered heavy damage.

Belle killed four persons during its brief journey on land—one on Long Island, two in Vermont and one in Connecticut.

Salonica, Greece (UPI)—Two French women wearing bikinis violated the sanctity of Mt. Athos, the monastic district in northern Greece Wednesday, but a court absolved them of wrongdoing when they said their children got sick.

Marie Laurant, 40, of Fontenay sur Mer, and Victorine Jeanne Colic, 42, of Le Havre, said their four children traveling with them in a speedboat got sick and they had to put in on a beach on Mt. Athos territory.

The women said they thought it was permissible to land on Mount Athos' beaches so long as they did not go near the numerous monasteries and the 1,200 monks that live in them.

Police from a patrol boat arrested the women near the monastery of Simon Peter an hour after they landed and charged them with violating a 1953 law which protects the 1,000-year-old state from female intrusion.

Bella Will Be Rosendale Guest

ROSENDALE—Congresswoman Bella Abzug will be the keynote speaker at the August 28 fundraising event in Rosendale. The event is being held to promote the reelection of Congressman Matt McHugh, 27th Dist.; Assemblyman Maurie Hinchey, 101st Dist., and the election of candidate Lewis Kirschner to the office of Ulster County Treasurer.

Ms. Abzug is the Congresswoman from the 20 Congressional district in New York City. A New York City native, Ms. Abzug earned a BA degree in political science in 1942. In 1945 she earned her law degree from Columbia University and was a practicing attorney for 25 years.

When elected to Congress in 1970 she discontinued her private law practice. Ms. Abzug and her husband, Martin, live on Bank Street in New York. They are the parents of two daughters, Eve Gail and Liz.

Other attraction of the Aug. 28 event will be an "International Buffet" prepared by the Top of the Falls of High Falls, and dancing until 1 a.m. to the music of the Nite-Owls.

The festivities begin at 8 p.m. at the Rosendale Recreation Center on Route 32 in the village of Rosendale. Ticket information is available from Ben Stormer, Barbara De Stefano, Patricia Hoffman and Bill Tochtermann.

Ellenville UR Transfers Parcel

ELLENVILLE — The Ellenville Urban Renewal Agency has authorized transfer of about 12,000 square feet of property on Market Street to developer Richard Rothman.

The agency received a description and survey map of the Market Street UR parcels from engineer Aaron Horowitz. Rothman, who was named developer of the property several months ago, has been awaiting a description and set boundary lines to complete his plans for development of the site.

Under terms of the UR agreement, Rothman will pay $1 per square foot for the land, which extends from Richie's Stationery Store at the corner of Center and Market Streets to the corner of Canal and Market.

Rothman said he had hoped to begin building in October, but delays in establishing boundaries and transferring title to the property made an October starting date almost impossible.

The agency will open bids Monday, Sept. 13, for sidewalks on Canal and Center streets surrounding the senior citizen complex. Engineer Robert Lockwood submitted specifications and a cost estimate of $12,126.

The agency also authorized the leveling of the vacant former Weiss property on Canal Street. The lot will be graded and converted into a municipal parking space.

Summer Sun Warning

KINGSTON — Long lazy afternoons spent lying in the sun will contribute to almost 300,000 new cases of skin cancer this year, the Ulster County branch of the American Medical Association warned today.

The county association warned that the sun's rays can burn even on overcast days or under water, and that a beach umbrella doesn't stop sunrays from bouncing off sand, patio, or deck.

A free booklet outlining proper precautions for sun-worshippers and the warning signs of skin cancer is available from the local society without charge at 400 Broadway, Kingston 12401. The booklet is titled "Sense in the Sun."

Air Fares Going Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Domestic air fares in the continental United States will increase 2 per cent beginning Sept. 15.

The Civil Aeronautics Board approved the fare increase this week after carriers cited continuing inflation and rising fuel prices to justify the action. The increase is expected to increase revenue by $85 million.

The National Passenger Traffic Association said the airline industry was growing and fuel prices have stabilized, eliminating the need for a fare increase.

King's Wealth

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Even kings have to disclose their incomes in Sweden now and King Carl XVI Gustaf made public his earnings Wednesday — the first time any Swedish monarch had done so.

Gustaf said he took in $149,500 and tax authorities allowed him a deduction of $14,260. He did not say how much tax he paid.

Cultural, $ Flavor At Convention Site

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The closest store to the site of the Republican National Convention has a wooden Indian in its window and the sign, "Protect Your Pigs! Vaccinate for Erysipelas."

The sign is a reminder of the cultural and financial flavor that surrounds Kemper Arena, a sports facility hard by Kansas City's stockyards.

The city's skyline can be seen from Kemper, but the small stockyard neighborhood is the only area in walking distance from the GOP convention site.

The stockyards, referred to by some as "West Bottoms" or "Cowntown," has five restaurants, several shops that sell animal health products and Western clothing, and the smell of thousands of cattle, sheep and hogs who stay briefly at holding pens.

The Farm World Veterinary Supply Store is directly across the street from Kemper next to the neighborhood's only billboard — which reads, "President Ford '76," with a solemn Ford staring out at the GOP convention site.

"It was just put up a little while ago," said I.A. Mendenhall, owner of the store. "I looked out there one day and there was just a big pole. I didn't know what they were putting up — and the next day there it was."

Mendenhall has worked in the stockyard district for 20 years. However, he has been thinking about closing his store during the convention.

"I don't think the delegates would be interested in cattle vaccines and serums and the area will be so crowded our regular customers probably won't want to come here that week," he said.

"We can't even expect the Texas delegation to be interested in animal health care products when they're here to make a presidential nomination."

Mendenhall doubted delegates even would be interested in buying one of the novelty items he sells — genuine Texas Longhorns, which span six feet and are mounted on a wooden block. They range from $35-$50.

"They're a little difficult to carry away, you know, on airplanes and such," he said. "But I won't feel bitter if I decide to close the store. That's part of living and in the long run the convention will do this area a lot of good."

The shopkeeper next door said some good results already are happening to him. "I've already had a lot of business from the convention from reporters who got here early," said Mark Ottinger, owner of Ottago's Western Wear store. "They've almost cleaned me out."

Ottinger sells Western clothes, hats, belts, boots, saddles, spurs and horse blankets. One of his hotter selling items was a 4X Stetson for $37.50.

"The 4X means that four beaver pelts were used to make the hat," he said. A 10X sells for $110.

If they wish, delegates can walk one block to the Golden Ox restaurant, a large steak house where you can get a Kansas City strip, 13 ounces, for $7.70; and a 10-ounce filet mignon for $7.30 — including baked potato, salad and garlic bread.

The stockyard, which dominates the neighborhood spatially and financially, is down the street from Ottinger's store and a block from Kemper.

"A lot of people say the stockyard is gone and vanishing," said Wayne Allen, stocker and feeder cattle auction manager. "And we have some city fathers up town who don't like the image of Kansas City as a cow town."

"But the stockyards and auction dumps a million dollars a day into the economy — and those aren't little peanuts," he said. "Some people never bother to come down here and see what we do. They don't realize what a part agriculture plays in Kansas City."

On an average day, 1,600 cattle, 1,700 hogs and 700 sheep are housed in holding pens at the stockyard.

Allen said the animals usually just stay one day before they are sold and transported away. He invited convention delegates to walk down to the stockyards and watch the auctions.

"We'll welcome them all. We'd be delighted to have them here," he said. "When you can expose your industry to people, then they can begin to understand you and you can begin to understand them."

Allen is sincere. There's even a side on the auction building that reads, "Ladies welcome."

"We didn't put that there because ladies weren't allowed in at one time," he said. "We put it there because a lot of ladies hesitate to go in where a lot of men are buying cattle. We want them to feel welcome."

If the conventioners visit the auction, they will see cowboy-clad horseback riders driving up to 100 cattle into a small dirt floor arena where bids are taken.

"We usually sell about 40,000 pounds at a time," said auctioneer Tom Morehead, who rattles off bids so fast the untrained ear is hard pressed to keep up. "And I guess we can fit about 500 persons in here."

The stockyards grew up on lowlands next to the Kansas River more than 100 years ago and have survived several major floods and fires. The appearance of the neighborhood has changed little in 50 years.

Kemper Arena, a $12 million steel and concrete structure built less than two years ago, sticks out like a sore thumb amongst the small brick buildings, livestock and cattlemen.

Some observers described the stark white, windowless arena as a cross between a water tank and a spaceship. Other acclaimed it as an architectural wonder.

"It's hard to describe. I guess there's nothing else that looks like it in the world," said Steve Scherbenske, Kemper's assistant manager. "But it has won several awards for its design."

Kemper, built on land once used as cattle holding pens, has been used mainly for professional hockey and basketball. In mid-August it will house the top Republican leaders in the country in what promises to be one of the closest political battles in recent years.

There will be 16,855 seats at the convention, but that is nowhere near the number of persons who will be watching and nominating the GOP presidential nominee.

Officials have estimated about 20,000 delegates, alternates, news media personnel and others will attend the convention. The overflow has made convention passes a rarity and mobile trailers have been set up outside the arena to ease the space problems.

Republican Convention Manager Ody Fish, however, said Kemper can handle the situation.

"If it wasn't big enough to hold the convention then we wouldn't be having it there," Fish said. "It's got 3,000 more seats than we had at Miami Beach in 1972."

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

NICKNAME: (Q.) Girls have a nickname for me. They call me "The Animal." It's tough to shake a nickname like that! My real name is John.

The nickname is especially troubling now because I think that I'm in love with a girl named Ginny. She says that I'm OK, but that I'm too young. I think the real reason is my nickname. Ginny is 7 and I am 14. Mortified in Massachusetts.

(A.) It makes good sense to me for Ginny to be reluctant to be your girl friend because she is three years older than you. She is no doubt well ahead of you in school, and has a different set of friends because of this. Going out with you would be more noticeable than going out with a boy her own age.

Do not put undue emphasis on your nickname. When you get angry at people who use it, you encourage unkind and unsympathetic people to use it again.

Try not to be rough or uncouth, or do anything else to remind people of your nickname.

Quietly ask your closest friends, boys and girls your age who like you and whom you like, to call you "John" instead of "The Animal." If they will do that, others will hear them and gradually switch to "John" themselves.

Look for a girl your own age who you can like and who can like you. A girl who really cares for you is not going to let a nickname bother her.

BEATEN: (Q.) My mother must be mentally sick or something. She beats me until I am black and blue. When I try to talk to her about it, she tells me to shut up and beats me harder. I have scars all over.

Should I get help for her? Who should I get? My father is a truck driver. When he is home, she never beats me. Only when he is gone. — Scared in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Talk privately with your father the next time he is home. Tell him exactly what happens when he is away. Ask him to find help for your mother. If he does nothing, talk to him again.

If he still does nothing, go to your minister, your school counselor, or to a relative or neighbor you trust. Ask the person you talk to for help. Tell him or her what has happened, including your talks with your father.

(Write Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great many received, Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, AUGUST 13

Your birthday today: Sets off a prolonged, intense cycle of inner reorganization. Intuition is an effective guide in confronting an increasingly complex environment. Your knack of converting potentials into available working capital improves with every effort. Relationships hinge on what you invest of your true self and how you select companions. Today's natives have a streak of fantasy and spirituality that takes many forms.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You create your own luck now by your attitude. Extra energy is needed to close out the workweek in good order. Don't indulge in practical jokes.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): See what you can do for parents and older folk whose welfare concerns you. Expenses are higher for social reasons. Don't try to compete with other people.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Familiar routine sharpens your skills, which proves profitable. It's better not to experiment now. Balance several claims on your time.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Attempt once again to persuade the right people to cooperate and share your views. Hard work brings recognition and higher income potential.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your ventures win support, admiration and endorsement, but must be well presented first. Even shortest journeys take planning for best results. Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There are never two days with the exact same pattern. Old problems should be reexamined and finally resolved.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lend a sympathetic ear to those in distress. Help reconcile a dispute by request only. Your projects get sidetracked momentarily.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ask for favors, scholarships, bonuses or whatever you feel you deserve. Overtime is justified. Allow others to change their plans.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can consolidate personal and professional enterprises now, with technical advice tempered by common sense. Tonight, let go and have fun.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): In today's hubbub, efficiency falters, but a great deal gets done somehow. Keep track of various essentials. Corrections should be made now.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Pursue discussions of problems with self-assurance. Others are acting on impulse contrary to their own best interests. Strive to understand them.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Serious discord fades and is replaced by teasing. Work and general welfare improves. Family and partnership finances need careful review.

 Opening lead — 10♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 How would you play today's hand against an opening lead of the 10 of diamonds? Would you lose a diamond and a heart or would you be smart enough to play West for three hearts to the queen?

When the late Sidney Silodor of Philadelphia, one of the great players, held the hand he adopted a most unusual but very successful line of play.

He rose with dummy's ace of diamonds while dropping the queen from his own hand. Then he led a heart to his ace and a second heart to dummy's jack. The finesse worked and since the queen of clubs dropped doubleton he had no trouble making seven.

Had Sidney seen the queen in the West hand? No, he hadn't, but his whole line had constituted a safety play.

Suppose that East held the queen of hearts and won that second trump trick. Would he have laid down his king of diamonds? Not on your life! Suppose West had led from the king of diamonds?

Sidney would have paid off, but great players know their opponents and Sidney knew that West did not lead from kings against slams.

If wishes were horses, there'd be some mighty strange-looking critters clattering up the expressways.

Add to your dictionary of collective nouns: A "durable" of luncheonette pies.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Elizabeth wife of Royal Governor William Franklin, of New Jersey, appeared to her father-in-law, Benjamin, to "relieve our troubles and have William released." The Governor was voted an enemy to the liberties of the country by the N. J. Provincial Congress and was arrested and imprisoned seven weeks previously. The elder Franklin had refused to discuss his Tory son's fate, and there was no record of any reply to Elizabeth's plea. The World Almanac reports.

Sniper Strikes in Wichita

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — The chunky red-haired youth, dressed in a T-shirt and faded blue jeans, carried two rifles and a lunch pail. He walked calmly past a maid, knelt on a balcony on the top floor of the tallest building in Kansas and sprayed the busy downtown street with bullets.

In the fifteen minutes before he was wounded by police, the sniper, firing from the 26th floor of the Holiday Inn killed two persons and wounded seven others Wednesday. Another person suffered minor injuries trying to escape the gunfire.

Police identified the sniper as Michael Soles, 19, of Sand Springs, Okla. He was hospitalized in fair condition.

Relatives said Soles went to Wichita three days ago to look for work and was staying with a minister, a family friend.

"He was a religious boy," said a relative. "He went to church and he was very quiet. He wasn't violent."

"He just wasn't the running-around type."

The sniper's victims were Joseph Goulart, 56, a freelance news photographer and former television cameraman, and Elmer W. Hensley, 57, a glass company employee, both of Wichita.

Goulart was hit by a bullet that smashed through the windshield of his car. Hensley, who was working nearby, died of a bullet wound in the back.

Glen Calvin, Kevin Simons, Tracy Godwin and his sister Janice Godwin were walking across the street to purchase tickets at the hotel for a concert.

They said they heard gunfire and thought a bank was being robbed.

"Then bullets started hitting all around us, so we started running back toward our car," Calvin said. "Janice got hit in the leg. It was just like being in the movies."

Miss Godwin was hospitalized in good condition.

Police Lt. Col. Bobby Stout said police have no motive in the shooting. He said five officers fired from an adjoining balcony, wounding Soles. "He was injured several times, mainly with pellets from a shotgun blast," Stout said.

Denise Guseman, 16, and her sister Penny, 17, were walking near the hotel when they were struck by bullets. Denise was in serious condition with a neck wound. Penny was treated for a leg wound and released.

Arnold Merritt, 51, who was working with Hensley, was shot several times and was in serious condition. Larry Ade, 45, Augusta, Kan., and Mark Felen, 23, and Chris Hoy, 25, were hospitalized with wounds.

Galena Mason, a maid at the hotel, said the sniper, carrying two rifles and a lunch pail, entered Room 2608 as she was leaving after cleaning it.

"He showed up with two guns, and I thought he was on a hunting trip and had every right to be there," she said. "He was carrying a lunchbox and two rifles."

Wounded sniper on police stretcher.

Tire Strike Nears End

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators for the United Rubber Workers union and the nation's major tire companies reached an understanding today on "basic economic issues" toward eventual settlement of the 114-day old strike, the Labor Department reported.

"Following virtually continuous bargaining during the past five days, an understanding on the basic economic issues, has been reached by negotiators of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers of America," a department statement said.

The statement was signed by Labor Secretary W.J. Usery and James Searce, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The statement said the negotiators were confident the development "will bring an end" to the strike, which has idled about 70,000 workers in 47 local unions since April.

Firestone served as negotiating representative for the three other major tire companies — Goodyear, Goodrich and Uniroyal.

Department spokesman Sam Marshall said the "understanding generally follows the recommendation for settlement" made to the parties Sunday by Usery.
